Calm before the storm

AN UNIDENTIFIED woman contemplates the ocean off Carmel Point while a seagull sits in silent vigil above her on a beautiful February day on the Monterey Peninsula. The next day, however, storms lashed the peninsula, bringing much needed rains, so much so that the dams on the upper Carmel River were filled to overflowing and the river mouth was opened to the ocean, bringing on scores of fishermen attracted by steelhead trout. Rains also washed out Highway 1 south of Big Sur, but Caltrans crews worked quickly to clear the blockage. Even so peninsula rainfall is still short of last year's total, but for now talk of water rationing has subsided somewhat. (Holly McFarland photo.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted.

Animal safety tip

Dear Editor:

Mother Nature is showing us that she still has control over the elements. With the record high tides and obvious shore dangers, I would like to remind dog owners that it isn't a smart idea to let your dog swim in the wintry ocean waters.

Throwing a stick out into the rough sea and expecting your dog (your best friend) to fetch it back to you may be the last faithful trick he performs for you.

Remember, with a little common sense, both you and your dog can enjoy a winter walk on Carmel Beach.

Appalling remark

Dear Editor:

An appalling remark was made by Margye Neswitz in her Social Scene column regarding the new Spanish Bay Resort in the Jan. 29 Pine Cone.

She speaks of "transforming the desolate into the desirable." I'm assuming she is speaking of the site of this monumental project. Perhaps she reflects the sentiments of many people who are delighted to have another place to go dancing.

Destroying coastal flora and fauna for the privileged few might be reworded to read: "transforming the desirable into the desolate." I suppose it all depends on your point of view. I would hate to think what Mrs. Neswitz would envision for the rest of the undeveloped land on the peninsula.

Spoiling the unspoiled

Dear Editor:

How carelessly we are trashing our lovely planet! With acid rain, toxic wastes, air pollution and so on, we are destroying the last beautiful unspoiled areas remaining to us. And now Carmel is joining the careless pack.

Carmel was founded by artists, writers and musicians, all of them with deep appreciation for nature. Over the years people from all over the world have been drawn here to bask in its unsurpassed beauty — not just to visit the shops on Ocean Avenue. They have come to admire and revere the whole superb natural area.

Now Carmel is advocating a four-lane freeway on its front doorstep, wiping out Hatton Canyon, the last wild region close to the town. With its giant Los Angeles-type interchanges at the entrance to Carmel Valley and at Highway 1 and Carpenter, this freeway will effectively complete the sinful desecreation of this area.

The Carmel City Council is abdicating its responsibilities to the residents as well as to all future visitors by asking Caltrans for the HCF with all of its ugliness and destruction of natural habitat which, once again, can never be restored.

Regretful decision

Dear Editor:

Under the management of Portia and Floyd Hardcastle, the Carmel Convalescent Hospital has earned the respect and admiration of those familiar with its wide range of services. It was therefore with particular regret that board members of the Monterey County Ombudsman Program learned of the Hardcastles' recent decision to terminate their facility's participation in the Medi-Cal program on March 1.

Their reason, with which we sympathize, is that the amount of reimbursement from Medi-Cal is not sufficient to cover the cost of providing care to frail, elderly and chronically ill patients. All nursing homes face this difficulty, but others in Monterey County are managing to care for a higher proportion of Medi-Cal recipients at the same reimbursement rate.

Our immediate concern is for the future welfare of the nine Medi-Cal patients currently resident at Carmel Convalescent Hospital. A number of them have lived there for years. It is their home, a place where family and friends can visit. They paid private rates as long as they could, converting to Medi-Cal status only when their own resources were exhausted. Are they now to be penalized for their longevity? And, if so, where will they go? There is already a serious shortage of nursing home beds in the county available to Medi-Cal patients.

We hear all too often these days that business is business and that the personal needs and consideration of others must take second place when a choice has to be made. We wish the Hardcastles had decided differently.

Misleading values

Dear Editor:

We don't know where the city administrator is getting his real estate opinions, but his statements in The Carmel Pine Cone, Feb. 5, that "Homes which are located on one-half acre lots generally sell for between $200,000 and $300,000" is totally inaccurate and misleading to those investigating property values.

What size dwelling is Mr. Schmitz talking about? 560 square feet or 3,000 square feet. Mr. Schmitz should limit his statements in areas beyond his expertise. By continually making mis-statements of fact, he does our real estate industry a disservice and makes the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea appear unprofessionally administered.

EIR required

Dear Editor:

Thank you for the Feb. 5 Pine Cone article by Nancy Hills which tells of the Carmel Planning Commission's vote (4-5) to waive an EIR on the Bennett property proposal despite conflicts. Everyone needs to know this vote came right after City Att. Don Freeman reminded them that state law mandates that if there is a conflict between expert statements and/or the public presents evidence of environmental concerns, an EIR shall be prepared.

Evidence was clear that there was a conflict between Carl Hooper, engineer for the developers and Clayton Neill, engineer for the city of Carmel as to their view of environmental concerns involved in the Bennett property proposal.

Hooper's approval of tree removal, landfill, stream bed diversion, all clearly contrasted with Neill's statement made in a letter, delivered to the Commission on Jan. 21 (and he quoted from it in an address at that meeting) which expressed concern that the Bennett property proposal planned to change a natural drainage path that runs through the property.

He cited possible consequences of such action as possible damage to downstream properties and city liability for it. It would seem that this possibility alone would be cause to ask for a EIR just to make sure the city is protected by taking all necessary precautions to prevent such potential consequences. Dale Hekhuis, Sierra Club Ventana Chapter chairman, reinforced Mr. Neill's concern by suggesting that only lots be developed on the site that would allow the drainage area to remain in its natural state.

Besides this conflict between experts, the public presented a petition, with 24 signatures of people who own property around the Bennett property, which cited environmental concerns as the reason for making the petition. In spite of this formal prepared statement of environmental concern, the commissioners who voted to waive the EIR, in discussion just before their vote, said they felt the people's response was "just emotional."

Of course the project's designers believe their plan is fine. That's their business. But the members on the planning commission who voted for the waiver forgot that it was their business to respectfully consider the advice of the city attorney, the city engineer, the chairman of the board of an organization that is dedicated to protecting the environment, as well as a significant number of Carmel citizens who believe an environmental impact report needs to be made by outside experts whose only interest is to evaluate the potential hazards of the Bennett property proposal that have come to light and, more importantly, perhaps identify some problems with it that may have been overlooked, so far, by us all.

Fortunately, we have government by law. The commission's recommendation will be dealt with at the city council meeting in March. We all have the right and duty to let the council members know how we feel they should vote on this issue, taking into consideration the law that mandates an EIR.

Open space valuable

Dear Editor:

The planning commission recently toured the Flanders Mansion and the Martin property preparatory to holding a public hearing which may redefine Carmel's policy toward open space lands.

The desire to sell the Flanders/Martin properties has seemed to increase following the preliminary decision by the city council to acquire the former Crocker National Bank building as a library annex. Since the cost of purchasing the bank building exceeds the library's endowment funds, the city is considering selling "excess" city properties to finance the library annex.

I strongly disagree with linking the sale of open space lands with the need to finance the acquisition of a library annex; these are separate and distinct issues which should only be considered on their respective merits.

The argument that open space should be sold because it has no specific use is completely without merit. Either consciously or unconsciously, open space contributes to a sense of openness and rural character whether or not it has a specific use. For example, the fact that only a small percentage of Carmel residents walk in Devendorf Park or on Carmel Beach each day does not, in any way, diminish their contributions to the aesthetic and natural strength of our community.

Visual and recreational resources are and must be recognized as valuable community assets which have important long-term human benefits, and not as convenient sources of municipal financing.

Open space cannot be replaced in the future; if we do not preserve our open space today, we are destined not to have any tomorrow. Mission Trail Park and the Flanders/Martin properties form a greenbelt along our southeastern city limit which deserves to be maintained against development.

I strongly encourage all Carmel residents who support the retention of open space lands to express their views to the planning commission and city council during the upcoming public hearings on this important environmental policy issue.

Unfinal finality

Dear Editor:

As just one member of The Friends of Harrison Memorial Library, it has been my pleasure to record for the Carmel history file significant events reported in The Pine Cone. In the issue of Aug. 6, 1986 there appeared this heartening headline:

Longtime library annex issue settled...finally.

So we had then a completed plan, beautifully executed in harmony with the historic building - and just across the street we saw in our dreams the building rising.

Seven months later, finally seems to have lost its meaning. Are we really reconciled to being The City That Can Never Make Up Its Mind? If we reject that canard, why do we fall for a proposal that an empty bank, perfectly ready for another financial institution, should be torn apart inside, at a cost of half a million--not forgetting the price of another $2 million to create a makeshift, second-best place for children and the ever-growing administrative needs of the library. And four blocks away!

Are we so sure that a drought is inevitable? Have we power over the heavens? There are countless ways to conserve water now carelessly wasted - or conferred lavishly on commercial ventures for affluent occupants.

Here's hoping that Coldwell Banker (felicitous name) may soon find another bank or institution happy to settle in comfortably on Mission Street. Of course we'll never let crass moneyed out-of-towners turn that site into boutiques! Trust our Planning Commission to prevent it.

Good show!

Dear Editor:

Thanks go to the Carmel-by-the-Sea city council for their 4-1 vote in favor the Carmel beach restoration plan which will help protect our beautiful shoreline. All the folks who will, in the future, enjoy the new walkway and the restored beach will also be saying "thank you" as they stroll along enjoying the beauty without the dubious pleasure of car-dodging.

Another thank you to Mayor Eastwood for the purchase of the Mission Ranch, including 12 plus acres of valuable wetlands, with the promise to keep it as is. Wetlands protection is a high priority item on the conservation agenda.

The preservation of these two special areas is a significant environmental contribution to our town. Good show.

Hatton freeway EIS runs into EPA roadblock

By DAVID LELAND

THE U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has put the kibosh on parts of the environmental impact statement for the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway project, forcing Caltrans to regroup and possibly alter its schedule for release of the final document.

Caltrans had scheduled a summer issuance of the final statement on the Hatton Canyon Freeway, but after reading comments from the EPA this could change, according to Ken Jones, Caltrans project engineer.

"We were hoping to pick an alternative by June," he said. "Now that's a little optimistic."

While there are seven alternatives proposed for the freeway project currently under review, the most popular one (endorsed by Carmel and Monterey County) is a $22.9-million option, which places Highway 1 on a new alignment through Hatton Canyon.

The EPA claims this alternative has "significant environmental impacts that must be avoided in order to provide adequate protection for the environment."

Instead, the EPA states that the minimum impacts to the area could be achieved by widening the existing highway.

In a letter written to Caltrans, the EPA cited noncompliance with the federal Clean Water Act regarding extensive removal of riparian vegetation from the area.

Removal of this vegetation, which includes Gowen Cypress, Monterey Cypress, Sandmat Manzanita, and Hickman's Onion, would drastically upset the ecological balance of the area, according to Roberta Blank, EPA environmental protection specialist.

The EPA reviews every environmental impact statement written, Blank said, and utilizes local agencies to gather information.

Under the proposed alternative of realignment 4.5 acres of wetland would be removed, which the EPA deems too much.

"We believe this loss of wetlands represents a significant adverse impact to the aquatic ecosystem in Hatton Canyon," the letter states. ("Wetlands" may refer to any riparian vegetation. The highway project includes portions of Carmel River and surrounding lands.)

Under the alternatives which merely widen the highway only 0.25 acre of vegetation would lost.

NOW IT'S up to Caltrans to work with the federal agency while coming up with a plan which will satisfy those concerned.

"We've got a little problem with riparian," Jones said. "We will work with the agency. If they feel we are removing too much we will develop another alternative."

The EPA does not offer suggestions on how to alleviate a problem, Blank said, that's up to the agency.

"It is the responsibility of the applicant to come back to us with a plan," she said. "We just raise the issues."

"Hopefully we will be able to work something out," Jones said.

It is imperative that Caltrans maintain a good relationship with the federal government for funding reasons.

Jones said while the proposed project would be about "80 percent" federally funded, he's not worried.

"It's going to cause us some extra study," he said. "But I don't see that it will kill the project."

According to one federal highway spokesman it is too early to start talking of canning the deal, which has been more than 30 years in the making.

The EPA is one of many agencies which review projects slated for federal funding, said Tony Harris, an area engineer with the Federal Highway Administration (Department of Transportation).

It is the highway administration which will ultimately give an answer regarding federal funding.

"It (the EPA report) doesn't carry any more weight than any other agency or citizen," said Harris, referring to the voluminous amount of input received on the proposed project.

But at the same time he acknowledged the criteria in the report should not be taken lightly.

"It will require quite a few changes in the document," he said.

WHILE THE removal of riparian vegetation is certainly deemed the most ecologically unsound part of the environmental impact statement, the EPA also found fault with other areas of the plan.

Regarding water drainage, air quality and state compliance, the EPA expressed "environmental concerns" with the statement.

Specifically, the EPA questions whether storm runoff from drains may dump car-related road dirt into the Carmel River.

Blank said this type of water runoff falls into a nebulous area where there are few federal regulations, so the EPA cannot cite permit statutes to Caltrans.

But Caltrans already has a plan to cope with this potential problem, Jones said.

What the state will do is to construct "new streams," he said. These will direct runoff into collection basins where the water will have a chance to settle before joining the Carmel River.

Jones said one of the direct benefits of this will be discarded rubber from the tires will have a chance to sink to the bottom of the pond before the water is channeled out.

It should be noted that "environmental concerns" noted by the EPA are not as critical as "environmental objections," such as the EPA had toward the removal of vegetation.

With this in mind, the EPA questioned what will happen to the quality of air if the highway is built.

Moreover, in the final environmental impact study Caltrans should establish what it is basing air quality standards on. In the preliminary statement the air is called "relatively clean." But in reality there were 12 instances in 1985 in which pollution levels were exceeded.

The EPA also suggests that air quality monitoring may be appropriate.

The final issue cited in the EPA's letter attempts to find out if Caltrans has conformed with the State Implementation Plan.

One purpose of this plan is to maintain air quality by providing alternatives for the population in dealing with transportation.

While the impact statement already has included a park-and-ride facility, bus stops and wider shoulders for bicycle use, the EPA asks for more detail in the final report.

Overall, the EPA said the report had insufficient information to fully assess environmental impacts that should be addressed.

SUPPORTERS OF The Hatton Canyon Freeway project hope this sign, pictured in the canyon, is not a preview of things to come. But unless Caltrans can meet the recommendations put forth in a letter by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency concerning destruction of wetlands, federal funding for the $22.9 million project could be jeopardized.

No new lots of record until allocation issue is solved

By NANCY HILLS

THERE WILL be no more new lots of record until the water allocation conflict is settled.

Carmel City Atty. Don Freeman told the Carmel Planning Commission that according to discussions between the California Coastal Commission, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District and the city, Carmel should not create any new lots of record until there is enough water to service already existing lots.

Freeman explained that the coastal commission had suspended issuing permits for Carmel until the water allocation problem has been settled. Applications that do not increase water use will be processed, however.

Freeman recommended that until Carmel has enough water to service or enacts a policy for current lots of record, the city should not increase the number of possible water connections on vacant parcels within its boundaries.

Freeman made his comments during the Feb. 11 planning commission's review of the Countess Claude de Kinnoull estate subdivision. Estate representatives had considered asking the planning commission to increase by two the number of lots of record in the estate.

After discussion with the city attorney, the estate representatives decided to accept a lot transfer instead.

"I urge you to consider city liability if you add two more lots at this time," Freeman told the planning commission.

If the city allows more subdivisions, it could be taken as a declaration that there is enough water to service the new lots, Freeman said. Since the city has a moratorium on building due to its water allocation, it could not issue a permit. Furthermore, there are developers waiting for permits who filed much earlier than Kinnoull and already have gone through the rest of the process.

Carmel is currently under a self-imposed moratorium on new construction and new business activities that would increase water use in the city because it exceeded its annual water allotment from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District last year.

Monthly water consumption reports from California-American Water Co. show Carmel currently under its allocation by approximately 1 percent, but the city has an ordinance that prohibits new permits until it is under by 2 percent.

Carmel has also filed a lawsuit against the water district concerning its water allocation system, but no court date has been set.

LES STRNAD, coastal commission chief of permits, told The Carmel Pine Cone that the commission will not issue permits as long as Carmel has a moratorium in effect.

"We can not issue permits on 'concept' basis," Strnad explained.

Any project that comes before the coastal commission, he said, by law must have a "valid ability to be constructed at time of the action." He added that the coastal commission makes its decisions based on the certified Land Use Plan of the city and the state Coastal Act. Currently, Carmel does not appear to have enough water available to enact those portions of the plan.

"Our effort is to insure a consistent and equitable advancement of the law," Strnad explained.

In order to do that the coastal commission bases its policy on the current availability of the resources and not on the possible future availability.

Right now, Strnad said, "the bucket is empty."

He added that if the city lifts its moratorium and the water management district agrees there is sufficient water to allow new projects to proceed, the coastal commission will begin issuing permits again.

The coastal commission will, however, issue permits for applications on projects that do not increase water use, Strnad said.

Water main work begins in Carmel

CALIFORNIA-AMERICAN WATER Co. began work on a water main in Carmel Feb. 12 which should be completed by the end of February.

Linda Morris, Cal-Am community relations manager, said work on the 6-inch main on Lincoln between Ocean and Eighth should take about two weeks to complete. Customers will be notified in advance of any water service interruptions.

Supervisors reject consolidation of elections

By DAVID LELAND

CONSOLIDATING SPECIAL elections with the general election would not be a good idea for either voters or the county, according to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

The board unanimously rejected a request Tuesday by 31 school districts and several special district boards which would have put district issues before the voters in 1988, the next general election, instead of next fall.

The result of the supervisors' decision will keep special district elections in odd-numbered years and the general election in even-numbered years.

While the Carmel Unified School District had supported consolidation, they had voted on the matter last fall before significant information had been gathered, said Bob Infelise, superintendent of CUSD.

Infelise was attending a conference in New Orleans this week and was unavailable for further comment.

While there were numerous representatives from the audience who attempted to invoke consolidation at Tuesday's hearing, it was a report from the county registrar of voters recommending denial that carried the most weight.

"We do not have the voting equipment to assist voters in a lengthy ballot," said Betty Bloomer, election official.

With that she read from a cost analysis which called for new data punches, booths and a satellite dish for relaying results from the peninsula to election central in Salinas.

In addition she said there would have to be 50 new precincts created to accomodate the long lines caused by the time it would take to vote on both sides of the eight or nine cards it would take to handle all of the issues.

The total cost of the consolidation would have been $239,160, Bloomer said.

While most of these costs would have been for the initital startup, the price still would have risen for each district in a consolidated election, Bloomer said.

For the CUSD, where 16,644 voters are registered, the 1985 school board election cost $7,514. Bloomer estimated a consolidated election in 1988 would be $8,488.

But the hidden cost in consolidating elections would be in maintaining an election department in off years when there were no elections, said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

"The election department is overworked," she said. "You may be better off to spread it out."

FOR THE school district representatives speaking before the board the central theme involved getting more voters to participate in school issues since state and nationwide elections draw a greater number of voters. On further examination, however, the board questioned this logic.

In San Diego County, where elections were consolidated last fall, the results were minimized by voters not completing their ballots, Bloomer said.

So, while on the surface more voters went to the polls, whether they took place in the process of voting for each issue on the lengthy ballot remains in doubt.

Not only that, but 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas said the tendency for many voters would be to re-elect the incumbent rather than try to sort through a new candidate's views.

Bloomer agreed. Saying that while the last gubernatorial election had generated about 57 percent voter turnout, special district issues would be at the end of the ballot and could carry less weight in the voter's mind.

"Please, please deny consolidation," said Ira Lively, a Seaside resident. "In consolidating the election you are closing the door to a lot of people. The more cumbersome the ballot, the less items a person votes for."

In Monterey County alone there would have had to have been 149 different ballot types to accomodate all of the special districts and general elections, Bloomer said. In the last election there were only 45 different ballots.

Planners to hold workshop on second-story additions

By NANCY HILLS

RESIDENTS INTERESTED in the appearance of downtown Carmel may want to attend the next Carmel Planning Commission meeting.

The planning commission will conduct a workshop on second stories and additions to buildings that already exceed code restrictions.

The commission will meet 3 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 25 in the Carmel City Council Chambers at city hall.

The workshop, which is not a public hearing, is a part of a much-shortened agenda that originally included a review of the sale of Flanders Mansion and Ted Leidig's application for a second-story addition on the Dansk building.

Both items, however, have been dropped from the agenda for now. Flanders Mansion must be reviewed by other peninsula agencies first and Leidig has yet to resubmit plans.

The planning commission will instead conduct a workshop on second stories in downtown Carmel, non-conforming buildings and parking.

The workshop will include maps of the commercial district that show what buildings are single story and second story, information on available parking and review of the codes regarding increasing non-conformity in a building.

The planning commission has been divided in its opinion on how to treat applications for expansions and second stories on buildings that already exceed land coverage codes — non-conforming buildings. The code states buildings which do not meet current code requirements cannot be increased.

The commission is also divided on the effect the increasing number of applications for second stories on existing buildings will have on the commercial district.

Carmel Assistant Planner John Bencomo states that maps show that 40 percent of the buildings facing Ocean Avenue are two-story structures.

Commissioner Bruce Roberts in particular has expressed concern that the ambiance of Carmel will be radically changed if second stories are allowed to proliferate.

Commission Chairman Ken White, in past meetings, stated he believed the issue should be addressed in a referendum.

In other agenda items, the planning commission will consider:

- An application by Village Artistry, an art gallery, to move into the vacated Studio Theatre on Dolores Street between Seventh and Ocean avenues.

The commission would have to issue a use permit for a space that previously was not used as an art gallery. Past city policy has been not to issue such permits to broker-style galleries.

- Consider an application for an ice cream parlor on the corner of Seventh Avenue and Dolores Street. The application is for a sit-down parlor with video cassette rentals.

Water problems hinder Kinnoull property plans

By NANCY HILLS

WATER PUT a damper on plans to increase lots at the Countess Claude de Kinnoull property.

On Feb. 11, the planning commission continued until March 11 a decision on subdivision plans for the large estate located at the south end of Torres Streets and bordered by 11th Avenue.

Attorney George Walker, local representative for the estate, and the estate's London administrator, English attorney John Vernor Miles, had requested that the planning commission increase the number of lots of record on the central parcel from two lots to four.

The estate currently has a total of 13 undeveloped lots of record, 11 of which are located along the Junipero Avenue side of the property. The center parcel, which contains the large Kinnoull house, is legally divided into two lots.

But Carmel City Atty. Don Freeman told the planning commission that until the water moratorium is lifted, it should not increase the number of lots in the city (see related story, this issue.)

The estate representatives agreed to consider reducing the number of lots on the western section of the property by two, which would keep the total number of lots the same.

Miles told the commission that they were "not seeking to maximize" the development of the property, but would like to see the matter dealt with "expeditiously." Maintenance of the property and fees to "attorneys, realtors and engineers" were using the profits from the investment portfolio portion of Kinnoull's estate.

Miles also told commissioners that he really did not want to sell the house separately from the entire parcel it is located on.

Increasing traffic and creating new roads for the development also were significant issues.

Torres Street, which currently deadends at the Kinnoull property, would have to be extended to 11th Avenue to serve a large portion of the new development.

To extend Torres Street through the property, many significant trees would have to be removed. The commission requested that plans for the road be moved westerly to avoid the maximum number of large oaks and pines. The westward shift, however, would remove property from some of the lots. Both the city staff and estate representatives will investigate ways to avoid the trees and tradeoffs for intruding into the lots.

The commissioners also expressed concern about increasing traffic at the junction of 11th and Junipero avenues. Commissioner Bruce Roberts suggested that 11th be made one-way and Torres Street be open to 11th.

Other issues the commissioners discussed on the property included:

- A drainage way on the property be realigned beginning at 10th Avenue and in a pipe extending along Junipero and 11th avenues.

Padres in playoffs

CARMEL HIGH School's Patrick Susemihl goes for an uncontested layup in December's 40th annual Carmel Invitational Basketball Tournament. Carmel finished the year with a 6-6 Mission Trail Athletic League record (16-9 overall) to finish in a tie for third with Pacific Grove High Breakers. Carmel will go up against PG at the Breakers' home court Thursday (Feb. 19) in the first round of the Shaughnessy playoffs. The winner advances against Gonzales (20-5, 9-3 in league for second place) Friday for a berth in the Central Coast Section playoffs. PG forced the tie and playoff by beating Carmel 62-58 in the final regular season game at PG. PG swept Carmel 2-0 during the season, but the Padres beat PG in Carmel at its own tournament. # Protect yourself against fires

ABOUT ONCE each hour, one American dies in a fire. What kills the vast majority of them? Surprisingly, not the fire itself. Most fire fatalities are due to asphyxiation. Victims succumb to smoke and toxic gases, often rooms away from the fire itself.

When fire burns, burned combustion by-products and complex chemicals are released into the air. Some of these materials, like carbon monoxide, take the place of oxygen in the bloodstream. Others sear the lungs or function like poison when they enter our systems.

So if you are there when fire strikes, your behavior should be designed to protect yourself from the fire.

How do you do this? First, install smoke detectors in the sleeping areas of the house. These will operate on small amounts of smoke and warn of danger which should waken all members of the house while the fire is still small.

Second, remember the smoke and dangerous products of combustion collect at ceiling level and decend as the fire develops. When the alert sounds don't stand up, roll out of bed and crawl to safety.

Install at least one smoke detector in every level of your home. Detectors should be placed in the hallway outside the bedrooms on the ceiling.

Once installed the detector must be maintained to assure proper response when the fire occurs. Be sure to test the smoke detectors once a month. Keep the face of the detector clean and keep the batteries fresh.

Red Cross sets free testing of blood pressure

EVERY WEDNESDAY the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross will conduct free blood pressure testing.

The public can receive free testing from 2 to 4 p.m. every Wednesday at the chapter house, Dolores and Eighth in Carmel.

For more information call the chapter at 624-6921.

Garland Park now largest county park with donation

THE LARGEST single gift of parkland has been accepted recently by the Board of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District as a major addition to Garland Park in Carmel Valley.

Transfer of 529 acres of scenic land known as the deDampierre parcel is east of the Garland Park and includes the existing Little League field north of the Carmel River, flat land south of Carmel River excluding 35 acres adjacent to the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club and scenic high ridgeland along the south side of Carmel Valley. Garland Park now totals 3,135 acres, the largest park and open space area on the peninsula.

Tony deSugny of Carmel Valley, son of the late Genevieve deDampierre, was present at the board meeting representing the family. Other members of the deDampierre family include Joseph Casey of San Diego, France deSugny Bark of Stanford and May deSugny MacDonald of Portola Valley. DeSugny said he first discussed the idea of creating a major addition to Garland Park with his mother in late 1970s. DeDampierre subsequently signed an agreement in 1980 to transfer a 529-acre portion of her Carmel Valley ranch to the park by way of the Trust for Public Land (TPL).

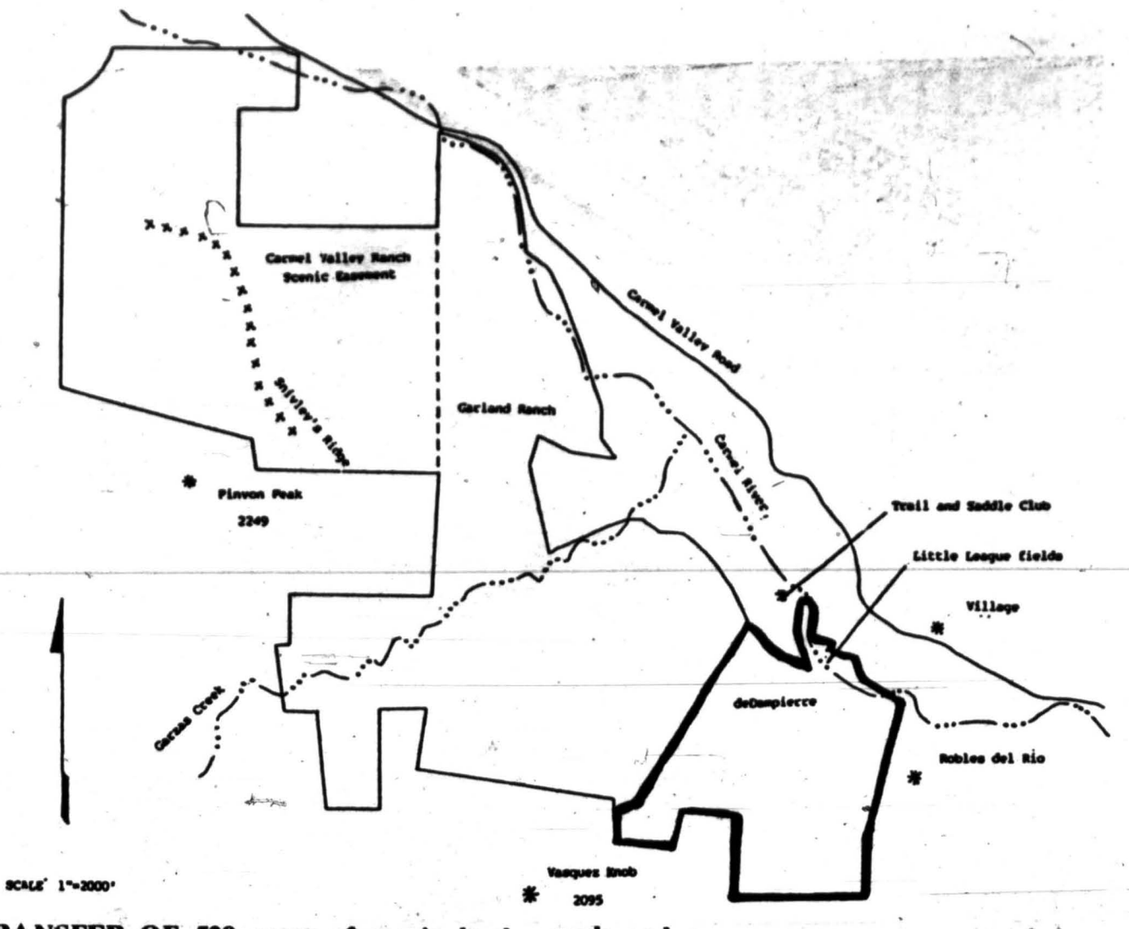
DeSugny pointed out that with the addition of his mother's gift parcel, Garland Park open space and trail system now runs some six miles along the south ridge of the valley from mid-valley to the area west of the village totalling some 3,135 acres.

TPL, a non-profit national land trust, acting as an intermediary, received an undivided 50 percent interest in the ranch by 1982. DeDampierre died in 1983 before her gift could be finalized but provided in her will that the remaining portion be conveyed to TPL.

Ralph Benson, executive vice president of TPL, said "he was very pleased that TPL could assist in the transfer of this significant property to the local park district according to the wishes of Mrs. deDampierre." The district, in accepting title to the 529 acres, agreed to pay TPL $50,000.

The district now plans to work with the deDampierre estate and Monterey County to obtain a minor subdivision so that the gift parcel can be separated and recorded.

Park district president Sean Flavin expressed the appreciation of the entire board to deSugny and the deDampierre family "for this generous gift and magnificent addition to Garland Park that will continue to be used and enjoyed by not only the residents of Carmel Valley but by park visitors of the entire Monterey Peninsula."



TRANSFER OF 529 acres of scenic land known as the deDampierre parcel to Garland Park in Carmel Valley makes it the largest park and open space on the peninsula at 3,135 acres.

Middle school student wins Elks' essay contest

A CARMEL Middle School student was one of the winners of a Monterey Elks Lodge-sponsored sixth-grade essay contest.

Timothy Lewis, 12, son of Donna and Michael Lewis, was one of six winners of the contest. An awards ceremony and dinner for the winners was held Feb. 11 at the Monterey Elks Lodge.

The theme of the contest was "Why We Should Honor the Flag." Essays will be entered in a district contest from where they can advance to state-level competitions.

The following is Lewis' essay:

I think we should honor our flag for many reasons. If we don't honor the flag, then, we don't deserve to be an American citizen. By honoring the flag, you set a good example for others to follow.

When I lived in Germany for three years, I traveled to East Germany five times. On one trip, while some guards were searching the train, I noticed a guard from my window who was pacing like a robot. When he made his about-face to start back on his imaginary path, he noticed me in the window. When no one was looking, he nodded and smiled to me. I felt he wanted to show me respect. He knew I respresented the other country that symbolized true freedom. I, also, realized he had to honor his East German flag.

In Europe, I had many friends of different nationalities: Yugoslavians, Greeks, Swiss, Finns and Germans. They honored their national flags and still respected ours. That is one thing about the Europeans, they always respect other countries' flags.

At the U.S. Army bases in Germany, everyday, at four o'clock, the soldiers had a flag ceremony, and any soldiers driving by would stop and salute. At the beginning of all movies on base, they would play the national anthem and everyone would stand to attention. At the beginning of each sporting event, the national anthem would be played.

Since I have moved back to the United States, I have noticed that the American children do not respect their flag as much as the European children and, I think we should improve on that.

Superintendent impressed with Israeli schools

By DAVID LELAND

IN THE war-torn state of Israel, Bob Infelise has discovered a camaraderie among American nationals that is barely touched in this country. Now, he's attempting to bring that feeling home and instill it in local schools.

For the third year running, Infelise, superintendent of the Carmel Unified School District, travelled to Israel acting as a consultant to the Walworth Barbour American International School of Israel.

The American school has a staff of 30 teachers and assistants and also accepts students from European countries and Israel.

While Infelise offers administrative suggestions to the management of the 400-student school, he also benefits by bringing back to Carmel the joy shared by those in the school.

"There's a feeling among the staff that goes way beyond anything I've seen in the United States," said Infelise, who in late January visited the school.

Infelise attributes much of this closely-knit feeling to the volatile political situation surrounding the country.

"They're an island," he said. "It's the only American School in Israel."

Infelise said the school is only 3½ minutes in "missile time" from warring countries Syria and Amman Jordan, which are located to the north of Israel.

The school is deemed an official bomb shelter but has never had to serve the students in that capacity, he said.

But Infelise said the potential danger has not taken away from the children's education in the kindergarten-through-12th-grade school.

"As far as I can tell the political atmosphere does not affect their education," Infelise said. In fact, he added that students in that school are more tuned in to academia than most U. S. students, especially when it comes to world politics.

IT IS more than compensating for danger that makes the school a model for Infelise to bring home — it is the effort the staff puts into understanding one another.

"I'd love to capture their morale," he said.

Not only is the country only the size of Monterey and San Louis Obispo counties combined, but Infelise said the simple logistics of a one-building school help promote a kinship that is hard to achieve in the CUSD, where sometimes teachers from different schools never meet each other.

"If a problem comes up everybody is concerned and wants to make a positive contribution," he said.

And while there is no way Carmel can put all of its students in one school, Infelise said this spring he plans to introduce some mixers within the district with the exclusive purpose of teachers getting to know each other better.

Infelise hopes that with a closer teacher community within the district, the CUSD will closer follow the lead of its counterparts in Israel.

"The way they approach problem solving is beyond anything," he said. "They genuinely like and accept each other."

Infelise also plans to work with the school board in molding next year's curriculum to better facilitate a closer atmosphere.

"We (the board) model their behavior in working with goals and objectives," said Infelise, referring to the work that has just begun for next year. He added that more involvement from the staff is one goal for 1986-1987.

"There's a sense of direction and of task orientation that's very difficult to capture in a large school system," he said.

Nevertheless Infelise has his priorities set for the CUSD and one of them is to bring to peaceful Carmel a type of understanding which abounds in the American school in Israel.

SCHOOL SUPT. Bob Infelise believes with a little work the Carmel Unified School District can come closer to the type of atmosphere found in its American counterpart in Israel. As if to show the attitude he is looking for, Infelise is all smiles. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Evening storytime hour moved up

HARRISON MEMORIAL Library's popular weekly evening storytime hour for children has been moved up by one-half hour.

The Wednesday night storytime for 2, 3 and 4-year-olds will now begin at 6:30 p.m.

The library has also announced the addition of a "Special Shelf" in the Childrens/Young Adult department designed to give adults easy access to materials on delicate contemporary issues that are written with a child in mind — familiar language and simple vocabulary used to explain concepts and promote understanding of various issues such as sexual development, living in single-parent families and coping problems.

For more information contact the library at 624-4629. The library will be closed Thursday, Feb. 12 and Monday, Feb. 16 because of national holidays.

Study session on bottle bill slated Feb. 19

COUNTY SUPERVISORS Sam Karas and Karin Strasser Kauffman, in cooperation with the city of Monterey, are co-sponsoring a study session on implications to the Monterey Peninsula of AB 2020, the so-called "Bottle Bill."

The session will be held 4 to 6 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 19. in the Monterey City Council Chambers. Leading the discussion on the legislation will be Dennis Stone of the Division of Recycling, California Department of Conservation. Also making a presentation will be Alan Milner of 3-R Recycling, who has successfully designed and implemented resource recovery programs in Petaluma, Santa Rosa, San Jose and Burbank.

The meeting is a study session for those most directly responsible for the implementation of AB 2020. The public is invited to observe.

Fifth-grade parent orientation Feb. 24

PARENTS OF current fifth-graders who will enter Carmel Middle School next fall are invited to an orientation session next week.

The session will be from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 24 at the middle school library.

Sponsored by the CMS Parent Faculty Club, the orientation is designed to acquaint parents with the many programs, courses and activities on campus. Presentations will be made up by both the CMS staff and the students.

The middle school parents and faculty welcome and encourage all fifth-grade parents to attend this informative evening.

Flanders discussion scratched from planning agenda

FLANDERS MANSION will not appear before the Carmel Planning Commission Feb. 25 as originally scheduled.

Diane White, Carmel Planning director, explained that the planning commission's consideration of the sale of Flanders Mansion must wait for at least 30 days and will reappear on the agenda March 25.

Various groups have been organizing their comments pro and con regarding the sale.

Since the mansion and property are public lands within a coastal zone, White explained, other agencies must be noticed and given time to comment on the sale. One agency that has been notified, White said, is the Association of Monterey Bay Area Goverments (AMBAG).

Before the city council can sell the property, the planning commission must determine if that action is in compliance with the general plan.

County seeks appointees to advisory committee

FIFTH DISTRICT Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman is inviting applications from interested constituents for three-year appointments to a county fire protection advisory committee.

Applicants are needed for the Monterey County Service Area No. 43 Advisory Committee, which advises the county board of supervisors in all matters of fire protection in its area.

CSA No. 43 consists of the unincorporated area around the city of Carmel, and applicants are required to be residents of the area.

Interested residents should contact the office of Strasser Kauffman at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey 93940 or call 649-6515.

Bakery on the way out?

WISHART'S BAKERY as Carmel has known it for more than 30 years may become a thing of the past. The Carmel Planning Commission approved current owners Richard Pepe's and Martin Hayman's application to transform the Ocean Avenue bakery into a full ice cream parlor with baked goods. The ovens in back will be removed. The commission denied their request to extend the business hours to 11 p.m. Commissioners also placed a condition on the permit that requires the business to offer large bakery items, such as cakes, as well as takeout baked goods. Staff planner Brian Roseth told the commission in order for the bakery to conform to its present permit, it must sell such bakery items. (Holly McFarland photo.)

THIS HOUSE, located at the corner of Carpenter and Third, is thought to be the oldest house in Carmel according to Carmel Heritage. It was thought to be built in 1888. (John Livingstone photo.)

CARMEL HERITAGE

By Betty Barron

Carmel's 'oldest' house?

SMILING WINDOWS and shiny-white paint make this "oldest" house in Carmel look like a newcomer. Built in 1888 when Santiago Duckworth bought the site from Honore Escolle, who had acquired the lands some years before, the house stood along on the tree-studded hillside, reached by a narrow rutted road.

Through the years it has survived a series of rejuvenations, each one enhancing its storybook design and charm. Sometimes called a fixer-upper by realtors, this first house has nestled into its natural wild garden in a comfy way that attracts a long second glance from the casual passerby. Its name over the gate, Da Kina Casa, suits its design and setting.

The present owners, the Bob Reiks, have owned the house since April 1986. Before them a series of Carmelites have called it home, most whose names seem to have been lost during the years when Carmel was drifting along in artistic euphoria.

Those were the years when "Carmelo," as Duckworth called the little settlement which he had wanted to turn into a Catholic resort, became the Mecca for artists, writers and philosophers. Those were the years of Sinclair Lewis, Robinson Jeffers, George Sterling and Mary Austin, who were said to have brought about an American renaissance of fiction, and of David Starr Jordan, later president of Stanford University, who found Carmel a pleasant retreat.

This column is the opening gambit of Carmel Heritage, a once-a-month feature looking into the past and the future. Carmel Heritage is an organization of dedicated "old" Carmelites, and an equally devoted contingent of newer-vintage residents.

Some of you readers may question this "oldest" house, and I welcome the challenge. Documentation of data was so casual in those early years of Carmel that there could be existing evidence to substantiate the house on San Antonio near the gate to Pebble Beach as the oldest...or some other house long hidden.

During the next months I will be browsing around Carmel, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach searching for the unusual, the charming, the quaint and quixotic. If you see me...hail me...and join me.

And, join Carmel Heritage. Membership is $10 a year. Send to PO Box 701, Carmel 93921. For information call Carmel Heritage at 624-4447. Barbara Schaffer is the newly-elected executive secretary.

Upcoming: 3 to 6 p.m., May 3, "Hats Off to Clint Party" at The Mission Ranch Barn — an old-fashioned barn dance with Jake Stock's Abalone Stompers — open to all Carmel Heritage members.

CAP scores dip, but solutions are imminent

By DAVID LELAND

SOMEWHERE ALONG the way from the fourth to sixth-grade, Carmel Unified School District youngsters are forgetting how to take the California Assessment Program test, which is causing scores to dip when first tested at Carmel Middle School.

In the three areas tested: reading, written expression and math, sixth-grade students at middle school scored either "well below" or "slightly below" the state average on the test.

The CAP test is given in third, sixth, eighth and 12th-grades on a statewide basis. The test provides a measure of school and district performance in each of the basic content areas.

But Karl Pallastrini, principal of Carmel Middle School, said it would be wrong to blame the problem solely on his school — it is more complicated than that.

"I think you have to look at it (sixth-grade scores) in context with eighth-grade scores," he said. He added that sixth-grade students are tested after having only attended middle school for seven months.

There appears to be some merit in Pallastrini's statement, with eighth-grade students at middle school scoring either above average or average on test scores.

"The problem lies somewhere between grades four and six," said Pallastrini, referring to the average scores attained by third-graders.

Pallastrini said elementary schools need to "pre-plan" the testing process. That is help the students prepare for the information they will be tested on at middle school.

"There is something in the test itself which is inconsistent with what it is trying to measure," he said.

Meanwhile, in order to raise test scores while at middle school, the staff there has begun working with the students in trying to explain the test.

For one thing, Pallastrini said, some youngsters think that if their parents take one class in college this makes them a college graduate. This misinformation, he said, will throw off the accuracy of the test.

The students are also being taught to take the test more seriously by injecting pride into the process, Pallastrini said.

ON THE bright side, students at Carmel High School scored well above the county average in their test results.

In reading the high school students scored almost 10 percent higher in correct answers than the countywide average, which also proved true in written expression.

In spelling and math they scored about 5 percent more correct answers than their counterparts within the county and state.

In other results the test indicated:

- That the percentage of sixth-grade students who enjoy reading and writing was above the county and state averages, but well below average in math.
- Sixth-grade students watched less than two hours of TV each day, which is below the state average.
- Eight-grade students in Carmel have written more reports and papers within the last six weeks than the statewide average.
- While 12th-grade students were spending an average amount of time reading, they were spending less time than the norm with regrad to watching TV.
- While high school students spend about the same amount of time each week on homework as the average, they complete fewer assignments each week than the statewide average.

Carmel Red Cross hosts free lecture on AIDS virus

THE CARMEL Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a free educational lecture on AIDS Monday at the chapter house in Carmel.

The lecture will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday, Feb. 23 at the chapter house at Eighth and Dolores. Speakers will be Dr. Mimi Fields, chief of preventative medicine at Fort Ord, and Willie Marshall, AIDS educator/nurse.

The lecture is entitled "The AIDS Virus and You." Refreshments will be served and free handouts on AIDS will be available. For more information call 624-6921.

STAGE IS SET FOR OCEAN AVE. PAVING

It looks as though Ocean Avenue is to really be paved. Tuesday night was the final day for protests.

The moment was tense, dreading the arrival of a protestant, and when Herbert Hand blew in he almost created a panic, because every one took him for an objector. But when he leaned innocuously against the door the tension was off and the half dozen citizens who packed the chamber heaved a sigh of relief.

The resolution ordering the assessment was then passed, and when the returns come in the board will advertise for bids.

The electrical inspector's fees were fixed at $1 a permit and 5¢ for each additional outlets.

DEFER ACTION ON AIRPORT

Until the city council is in a unanimous frame of mind, no action will be taken on the request from the Monterey Chamber of Commerce for $860, Carmel's voluntary pro rata, on a basis of 2, 3, 5 with Pacific Grove and Monterey, for completion of the peninsula aviation field in Monterey. The amount required to improve the runways and put doors on the hangars is $4,300; Monterey is holding the bag as sponsor of the project, and Carmel has been asked to contribute 20 percent of this total.

SUNSET SCHOOL TO BE CLOSED TRUSTEES DECIDE

Carmel's first school, Sunset, may close its doors next fall after 56 years of operation.

Trustees of the Carmel Unified School District voted last night to proceed with a plan presented by school administrators which calls for closing the Sunset plant except for administrative offices and occasional use of the auditorium.

WASTEWATER USE OK'D

The Carmel Sanitary District may be distributing recycled water in the very near future at a cost of $1 per 1,000 gallons.

The district currently sends two million gallons of water a day into Carmel Bay. It is the only district on the peninsula with wastewater that qualifies as being clean enough for landscape watering use at this time.

The district already reports many inquires into the reuse of their wastewater, including one from the city of Carmel. Construction firms, that would be hurt by water rationing, have also been considering using wastewater, as has Del Mesa.

PICCADILLY GETS FACELIFT

The future Piccadilly Park on Dolores Street received a facelift from community-spirited citizens Saturday, Feb. 6.

Fourteen Boy Scouts and leaders from Carmel Boy Scout Troop 3, assisted by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club and the city Forestry Department, cleaned the site and removed the debris.

Parental involvement

By SHARRON DOUGLAS

AT RIVER School we enjoy a high level of parent involvement. Parents are active participants and perform many functions which contribute to our program.

The River School PTA provides many services to our school. A variety of activities are organized and coordinated by this group. An opening day coffee is held each year to welcome the staff and parents back to school and to introduce new parents. In October, the Halloween Parade is an exciting event. The students march in costume from Sunset Center down Ocean Avenue to the Beach. The parade is viewed and enjoyed by the local community. Welcome Week picnics are held for each grade level. Parents are invited to have lunch with their children's classes.

The musical Holiday Program is presented each December at Sunset Center. Bill Purdy, the music teacher, the staff and PTA representatives work together to make this event a success.

Parent information nights are scheduled each year. "Meet the Principal" night was held in September. Dr. Tom Bishop, a local child psychologist, spoke in February on "Emotional Immaturity in Children."

Recognition Day is an important event for the fifth-graders. A ceremony is held celebrating their completion of elementary school in June.

Bobbie Infelise and Lynn Bohnen are in charge of the before-school foreign language program. Under the aegis of the PTA, Spanish and French are offered to interested students, kindergarten through fifth-grade.

Several fund-raisers are conducted by the PTA for the benefit of River School. In October, an all-school Walkathon was held. The students gathered pledges and walked laps to raise money for the science program.

In the spring, an evening activity for parents combines fun and fund raising. In May, this major event will be a dinner-dance with a '50s and '60s theme.

The proceeds from these activities are donated for the enrichment of the River School program. Funds for Science Camp, instructional supplies, computers, landscaping, library books, guest speakers and the Museum on Wheels were given this year.

Another service provided by the PTA is the coordination of the parent volunteers. These volunteers serve in a variety of ways: classroom aides, clerical help, office assistance, room mothers, field trip supervision, and library help.

The PTA meets the first Wednesday of each month. The PTA Board includes the following members: president, Janet Gendelman; vice president, Karen Huntington; secretary, Audrey Zerbe; treasurer, Nan McCauley.

The services the parents provide enhance the instructional program at River School. This support contributes to the success and exemplary education we are able to make available to our students.

Overheard among the cucumbers

HERE WE are in the third week of February, which means that Tax Reform has been a reality for almost two months and, would you believe it?, we overheard a conversation recently wherein the word write-off was bandied about several times.

We were strolling, or rather grazing, through the salad bar at the Thunderbird, when this apparently sane chap in a button-down plaid shirt kept talking about write-offs. This citizen was either a tourist or someone who has assiduously avoided our ongoing discussions of investing in the era of Tax Reform.

Write-offs? Under Tax Reform of '86?

In weeks past we've pointed out tax-exempt and taxable income-oriented investment opportunities under the new law. Here's strategy 1 in tax-deferred investments:

Strategy 1: Purchase a life insurance policy for tax-deferred returns and protected income tax-free estate benefits.

Life insurance has always been a tax-advantaged savings plan favored by safety-minded investors, and it may have even wider appeal now that alternative methods of tax savings have been cut back. Here are three ways to make use of this long-established accumulation vehicle:

1. Purchase a single-premium whole life policy to provide security for your heirs. As the name implies, such a policy is a one-time deposit. The death benefit is income tax-free to your beneficiaries. In addition, the cash value builds up and is not taxed unless you surrender the policy during your lifetime.

2. Purchase a variable life policy for greater flexibility and higher potential return. A variable life contract allows you to move dollars from one type of investment to another within the policy at no tax cost or sales charge, in order to take advantage of market conditions. Among the types of investments available are common stock, money market and government portfolio funds.

3. Borrow at low or no cost to meet major expenses. Single-premium whole life and variable life policies allow you to borrow against the accumulated cash value at extremely attractive rates, providing funds for such purposes as your children's education.

Next week: Another Tax-Deferred strategy.

Crafts fair fund-raiser at Middle School

IN AN effort to help defray costs of Carmel Middle School's foreign-exchange student program with Spain, the school will hold its Second Annual Arts and Crafts Fair and Flea Market this Saturday.

Twenty-four sixth-grade students will spend three weeks this March attending school in both Valencia and Barcelona. The cost, according to Donna Alonzo, middle school counselor, runs about $650 per student. She added that parents of participating students pay for their child's expenses.

The fair will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 21, in the Carmel Middle School Gym.

Originally the brainchild of Supt. Bob Infelise, the exchange program works to establish a bond between students of the two countries. The students who are visited this March will stay with families in Carmel next semester, Alonzo said.

The goal is to have students spend one full semester at the American School in Barcelona while attending Carmel High School.

Accompanying Alonzo as a chaperone and instructor on the trip will be John Waldron, who teaches science, health and Spanish at middle school.

Carmel Valley boy wins YMCA contest

FINALS FOR the YMCA Carmel Basketball League Free Throw Contest were held Feb. 10, during halftime of the Carmel-Hollister game at Carmel High School. The finalists had worked their way up through team and division finals held during the league.

Winners for the three age divisions are Chas Swallow, third-fourth-grade division; Dylan Coleman, fifth-sixth-grade; and Brian Langley, seventh-eighth-grade. Swallow, a Carmel Valley third-grader, actually swept the championship, sinking 13 out of 15 shots.

First runners up for the respective divisions are Amir Masliyah, Jeff Yates and Brian Driscoll.

The Carmel League will continue through Feb. 28.

Free income tax assistance available

FREE INCOME tax assistance will be available to senior citizens from 9 a.m. to noon every Monday at Sunset Center's Room 6.

Seniors should bring their tax forms for 1986 and a copy of last year's return with them. Call 646-4636 for information.

The program is sponsored by the Alliance on Aging.

Mayor installs CBA officers

THE EVENING started off in the spirit of fun and good fellowship when the members of the Carmel Business Association and guests gathered at the Spyglass Restaurant, La Playa Hotel last Friday the 13th.

There was pre-dinner dancing to the live (in Carmel?) music of the Bow Williams Band, followed by dinner and the installation of the 1987 officers.

After dinner, the mistress of ceremonies Barbara Simmons introduced honored guests: the Mayor of Carmel, Clint Eastwood, councilwoman Elinor Laiolo, Debby Amaral, (president of the Pacific Grove chamber), Marlene Kruft and Brian Shaw (vice president and president of Marina chamber), and David Armanasco, (president of the MP chamber). Rev. Charles Anker, Church of the Wayfarer, gave the invocation.

Outgoing CBA president, Joan DeMers, came to the podium, thanked her board and gave plaques to Clive Rayne and Ellie Lester for their work. She thanked Mayor Eastwood for making 1986 an exciting year and for bringing a new spirit to the Carmel business community. Incoming board president Fred Fozounmayeh presented a gift of a silver tray to Mrs. DeMers.

When Mayor Eastwood came up for the installation ceremony he won warm response with his wit and humor. There were such quips as, "I must get my glasses out. I don't need them, I just wear glasses to look intellectual like Warren Beatty." For the new CBA president he said, "He owns a restaurant and just bought a Rolls-Royce." As he introduced Dee Adolph the mayor quipped, "She wears more jewelry than Mr. T."

In the lineup for installation were Fozounmayeh, (president), Clyde Sturges (vice president), Dee Adolph, Barbara Simmons, and Dick Vance. Unable to attend were Florence Berrey (treasurer) and Joe Frick.

The new CBA president said, "To live in this corner of the world is God's blessing." And, just before the dance floor filled again with dancers, Happy Birthday was wished to Gasper Cardinale, known as "The Mayor of Ocean Avenue."

FROHMAN BRINGS BROADWAY TO THE WHARF

The Frohman Academy and The American Musical Theatre Festival were off to a good start with Starting Here Starting Now, the updated, fast-paced musical written by David Shire and Richard Maltby, Jr. and directed by Lara Teeter (Tony nominee). The New Wharf Theatre looks great and the audience was seated in comfortable new seats for the ribbon-cutting ceremony held onstage just before the opening night curtain Saturday at 8.

Attending opening night were Monterey Mayor Dan Albert, Sam Karas, Mikel Pippi (executive director of Frohman), Angelo Digirolamo (Wharf Theatre owner), Sherwin Goldstein (president of the Frohman Foundation) and "Sidney Seagull" (symbol of the Wharf).

Mayor Albert said, "I always had a secret desire to be mayor of Monterey and to be on the stage. So here I am." Karas (who has performed on the Wharf stage) wished the traditional thespian good luck, "Break a leg." The red satin ribbon fell to the floor, musical director Paul Horner began the beat, and stars Tim Bowman, Linda Candace Hart and Betsy Joslyn filled the theatre with music and song. The first-nighters loved the show.

A steady rain did not dampen the blithe opening night spirits as they made their wet way to the Monterey Plaza Hotel for an after-theater champagne reception (1984 Brut — compliments of The Monterey Vineyard).

Audiences may anticipate many entertaining performers working with local students and community actors. Starting Here, Starting Now plays now through March 9 and March 19 to April 18. Coming up in March, Hey Ma, Kaye Ballard's one-woman show, and in May, Baby. There are special group ticket prices and there are still seats available at $250. So you can put your name on your very own theater seat in the New Wharf Theatre.

CARMEL MUSIC SOCIETY INVITES THE ENTIRE AUDIENCE TO A PARTY

Visual and audio art was on the agenda for the evening at the last concert of the Carmel Music Society. Not only was there an exhibit of sculpture, painting and pastels (from the Sunset Center Art Workshop) in the Sunset Center lobby before the concert by duo-pianists Misha and Cipa Dichter, but the entire audience was invited to a party afterwards at the Carmel Art Association.

The concert was varied, with Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Robert Schumann, Aaron Copland.

There were ikebana-decorated tables of food and wine throughout the spacious Carmel Art Association galleries for the party following the concert. Party planners were Harriet Shanner, Hildegunn Hawley, Eleanor Lusignan, Sunzah Park, J.D. Clinton and Bab Armstead.

What a delightful Carmel cultural evening.

A SAIL DOWN THE NILE ON VALENTINE'S DAY

The Suicide Prevention Center of Monterey County began its 20th year with a rare social get-together. The volunteers and staff arranged a Valentine's Day lunch and fashion show at the Monterey Plaza Hotel called Sail Down The Nile.

There were 25 modern-day King Tuts out to see fashions from Charmack & Chandler, Monterey, among the 175 modern-day Cleopatras that are now up-to-date on the latest in ladies wear shown by Gerry's Designer Fashion of Carmel and Elan of Pebble Beach.

Karen Rezai (of Gerry's), in a bright green outfit with a cowl, guided the fashion voyage down the Nile. Fashions ranged from pink (could we have spring without pink?) and lavendar to basic black which is definitely in — but with sparkles lighting garments for day as well as for evening. And hats, hats, hats from Chapeau Chateau in Carmel. From the SPC were models Soundra King, Susan Cate Lynn, Shawn Cartwright, Katherine Lingan and Susan Ayres. Also treading the runway were KMST's Kathy Nash and Carl Bell (along with his pretty wife, Tracy) Maggie Eastwood Wynberg, Karen LeVett, Char Etienne, Patty McAfee, beautiful Ruthie Watts and Marti Myszak and others.

Hearts-and-flowers day atmosphere prevailed. Janine Whent, chairwoman of the show, presented a plaque of appreciation to Gerry Verga (owner of Gerry's Designer Fashions) for her support and roses went to Val Garrihy who sold so many tickets and attained door prizes from generous merchants. Then SPC board president, Soundra King, presented a large bouquet of flowers to Janine.

A lot of lucky guests went away with happier Valentine hearts and generous prizes that were exceptionally desirable.

SWEETHEART DINNER DANCE FOR HOST LION'S CLUB

The Monterey Host Lion's Club, with eight local clubs participating, gave a Sweetheart Dinner Dance at the Monterey Sheraton ballroom Saturday evening — Valentine's Day. The romantic evening of dancing to Glen Miller arrangements by the John Daly Band was attended by more than 350 "sweethearts" from all over Lion's District 46.

Another plus — the evening benefited the City of Hope for Cancer Research which gave a boost to all hearts throbbing with romance on St. Valentine's Day.

VALENTINE DAY NUPTIALS

Hallie Jean Mitchell and William Bradford Dow were married Feb. 14 at 4 p.m. in the Church of the Wayfarer, Carmel.

The bride, who recently moved to Carmel from Orinda, where she was vice president of an insurance firm, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Mitchell of Carmel. William and John Mitchell are her brothers.

The groom has lived in Carmel for many years and his five children attended the ceremony.

A wedding reception supper for family members and close friends was held in the Beach Club in Pebble Beach following the ceremony. After a honeymoon to the Orient the couple will make their home in Carmel.

TRAVELING ART LOVERS

CARMEL RESIDENT STANFORD FUND-RAISER

Harold F. Saunders of Carmel has been enlisted as a volunteer in the Stanford Centennial Campaign, the five-year, $1.1 billion fundraising effort announced Feb. 10 that coincides with Stanford University's 100th anniversary celebrations.

Saunders will serve in the Major Gifts Program, which is responsible for raising gifts of $100,000 to $1 million from approximately 3,000 alumni and friends of Stanford.

The Stanford Centennial Campaign, which President Donald Kennedy has called "the most important undertaking in the University's history since its founding," seeks to revitalize undergraduate education, to strengthen the community of faculty and graduate student scholars, and to redevelop science and engineering research facilities.

CARMEL RESTAURATEUR NAMED PRESIDENT OF MPHRA

Bob Negri, owner operator of Giuliano's Restaurant in Carmel, has been elected to the office of president of the Monterey Peninsula Hotel and Restaurant Association for the year 1987.

Other officers elected to serve are: vice president — Bill Hurley, general manager of the Monterey Sheraton; treasurer — Pierre Coutou, owner operator of La Provence Restaurant; director — David Jones, general manager Monterey Bay Inn; director — Robert Taylor, MAST Restaurants.

The 150-member organization is composed of owners and managers of Monterey Peninsula hotels, motels, inns, restaurants, golf clubs and purveyors who represent the $140 million hospitality industry and employs 15,000 people on the peninsula.

LOCAL RESIDENT NAMED TO DEAN'S HONOR ROLL

Christie Denise Navaille of Carmel, has been named to The University of Mississippi Dean's Honor Roll for the 1986 fall semester.

A grade point average of 3.5 through 3.74 is required of full-time students carrying at least 12 semester hours for listing on the Dean's Honor Roll.

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION PLANS FEBRUARY CAMPAIGN

A volunteer force of 2,541 will work for the American Heart Association's February residential campaign. This group includes 1,063 people from Salinas and Salinas Valley cities, 924 people from the Monterey Peninsula cities and 554 Santa Cruz volunteers. King City and Pebble Beach residents will receive letters from neighbors, as will residents in a few remote tri-county areas.

The city chairman of Carmel is Virginia Wood, and is Ruth Grandt for Carmel Valley.

The residential donations from the February campaign accounted for 24 percent of Central Mission Trails total income for 1985-86.

Donations to the American Heart Association support scientific research and provide public and professional education aimed at lowering premature death and disability due to heart disease.

Nearly 50 percent of all deaths are due to cardiovascular disease. Heart and blood vessel diseases kill almost as many people as cancer, accidents, pneumonia and all other causes of death combined.

LOCAL STUDENT ATTENDS LANDMARK COLLEGE

Matthew King of Carmel recently completed the fall semester at Landmark College. He took Biology, Pre-Calculus, Research and Study Skills, English Composition, and a one-to-one tutorial. He was a member of the volleyball and basketball teams, and participated on the long-range planning committee and the Student Board of Representatives.

Landmark College, Putney, Vermont, is the only college in the country that is exclusively for dyslexic students.

SIERRA CLUB HONORS PANETTA

At its annual dinner, Feb. 7 at the Santa Catalina School, the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club enjoyed a program entitled "The Extraordinary Landscape" with aerial photographs by award-winning photographer-pilot William Garnet.

The group also presented four awards: for her considerable efforts toward conservation, the Betty Davis Conservation Award to Jo Stallard of Pacific Grove; for extraordinary service to the chapter, to Charlotte Anderson of Salinas; for contributions significant to Environmental Education, posthumously to John Davis (accepted by his widow Norma Davis of Carmel); and for his commendable voting record and outstanding contributions to the environment by an elected official or public agency from Monterey or Santa Cruz counties, the Public Service Award to Rep. Leon Panetta.

Assemblyman Sam Farr endorsed the choices by issuing corresponding California Proclamations for Conservation Achievement.

KELLYWEEK NOMINATIONS SOUGHT

Last year for Kellyweek, Kelly Services pledged nearly 12 years of free temporary help to worthy non-profit organizations throughout the nation. This year, in celebration of Kellyweek 1987, Kelly Services plans to continue this spirit of giving and would like to enlist the Monterey/Salinas communities' support.

The Monterey/Salinas Kelly Services offices will provide 64 hours of free temporary help to eight non-profit organizations in the Monterey/Salinas area.

Kelly Services is accepting nominations of local non-profit

KAZU SETS MARDI GRAS MASQUERADE BALL

An authentic New Orleans-style Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball comes to Monterey on Feb. 20 when the downtown Sheraton Hotel comes alive in a swirl of color, light and music. This time the ball is co-sponsored by the Monterey Sheraton and by KAZU-FM Monterey Bay Public Radio.

Centerpiece of the Friday night event is the music of Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers, whose jazz style derives directly from New Orleans. 'Papa Jake', his clarinet and his band have been entertaining audiences throughout the area for decades.

Another band ready to play Feb. 20 will be the Fabulous Bagtones, which began life as a pickup group three years ago. Word of mouth turned into popular demand, and the Bagtones now play frequent party dates. Three of the members - lead guitarist Paul Alessini, Guitarist Mike Eckstrom, and bassist Rick Wolter - are veteran announcers for KAZU. Rock and rhythm and blues are their forte.

Rounding out the musical portions of the Mardi Gras Feast will be the Aptos High School Jazz Band, a much-traveled and much-honored group that has toured Hawaii and Japan as well as winning competitions from other school bands.

But other action at the KAZU-Monterey Sheraton Mardi Gras will also remind people of New Orleans. A King and Queen will be crowned, and everyone attending is encouraged to come in costume.

KAZU, now in the midst of its 10th year on the air, is a station whose programming is often reminiscent of New Orleans. Blues, traditional jazz, New Orleans piano, rhythm and blues, zydeco and other styles are highlights in the station's schedule.

Located at 90.3 FM, the 4200 watt station serves a potential market of a half-million listeners throughout the greater Monterey-Santa Cruz area.

Tickets for the Mardi Gras are available at KAZU (phone 375-7275 during usual office hours or visit 582 Lighthouse Avenue in Pacific Grove), and at Center Stage Ticketing in downtown Monterey. All tickets are priced at $10.

Low-income phone service now available

In their January or February bills, Pacific Bell customers will be notified of a new discount telephone service for low income households.

Known as Flat Rate Universal Lifeline, the service allows households which meet certain maximum income requirements and other criteria to subscribe to unlimited local calling at less than half the usual rate.

The monthly discount rate ranges from $3.38 to $4.63, depending on the size of the local calling area, according to Jim Bower, area manager for Pacific Bell.

In most areas, qualified customers may also have the option of choosing Measured Rate Universal Lifeline for as little as $1.48 per month, which includes an allowance of 60 untimed local calls. Customers who exceed the allowance pay 10 cents each for calls between 60-70 and 15 cents for each call above 70.

Low-income customers will now have a chance to choose between these two discount plans," explained Bower. "In the past, only one type of Lifeline service was available in a given area."

Bower explained that customers who make an average of more than two to three local calls a day will save money by subscribing to Flat Rate Universal Lifeline, while those who make fewer calls will save money by choosing the Measured Rate Universal Lifeline.

Customers may switch to either type of discount service free of charge through March 31, 1987. After that date, a one-time fee of $7.50 will apply.

To qualify for a discount plan, customers must meet certain income requirements. Households with one or two persons may have a gross annual income of no more than $11,900. For households of three, the limit is $13,800; four people, $16,600; and for each person over four, the ceiling rising by another $2,800.

In addition, subscribers may have only one phone number in the home, which must be the primary place of residence. Subscribers may not be claimed as a dependent on another person's income tax return.

Subscribers also receive a 50 percent discount on telephone installation charges, and no deposit is required for new service, providing there are no unpaid telephone bills.

To sign up for Flat Rate or Measured Rate Universal Lifeline, call your local Pacific Bell office or use the form provided in your next telephone bill insert.

Carmel church establishes $1,000 scholarship fund

THE REV. James Clark Brown of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula has established a scholarship fund in memory to the seven astronauts killed in the Challenger launch of a little more than a year ago.

Brown said the fund — which will provide financial assistance to a student in "any field of human endeavor which may benefit humankind," was established to honor the crew of the Challenger.

"The scholarship will be give once a year to a graduate of a local high school pursuing a career on the frontiers of human endeavor and achievement," said Milton Frinke, a member of the church and scholarship committee. "An outstanding and needy student will be given a $1,000 minimum award. It's not much, but it's a big help."

Frinke and Brown said an immediate goal of $10,000 was set last Feb. 2 and was announced to the congregation at Brown's Sunday sermon. Within 15 minutes after the benediction more than $3,500 was raised by the 225-member congregation, they said. But more is needed.

Now Frinke and Brown want to bring their efforts to the general public.

"We're going to try bringing it to all of the community at large," said Brown. "We want to make it a substantial a help as we can make it."

With that in mind the church is not only asking for donations from the community, but for the community to submit names of potential candidates for the scholarship each year.

"We'll be ready in June to award a scholarship in excess of $1,000," Brown said.

Applicants will be screened and selected by a six-member Scholarship Committee.

To contribute to the fund or to nominate candidates write to:
Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, PO Box 3627, Carmel 93921, or call 624-8595.

Carmel Red Cross conducts classes in CPR techniques

IN 1986 650,000 people in the United States will die from heart attacks ... fully three quarters of those attacks will happen at home.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation, commonly called CPR, saves approximately 250 lives every day in the United States.

With that in mind the Carmel-by-the-Sea chapter of the American Red Cross has launched a campaign to train as many people as possible in CPR techniques.

These classes will teach new standards for opening and maintaining someone's airway, how to breathe for them, perform chest compressions and to do full CPR on adults, children and even infants, said Phil Gray, chapter publicity chairman.

The classes, including demonstrations and lectures, require about four hours to complete. Trained Red Cross CPR instructors will conduct the courses and students practice their skills on mannequins under professional tutelage, he said.

In addition, choking rescue techniques — the famed Heimlich maneuver — will be taught.

Individuals can also take courses in how to take blood pressure, administering first aid, providing disaster relief, and other volunteer assignment opportunities in the Red Cross.

Those completing the CPR course will be awarded Red Cross certificates. Class size, however, is limited. For more information, or to register, call 624-6921.

Poets in school

BY KARL PALLASTRINI
Principal, Carmel Middle School

IN AN effort to supplement the program for our honors and GATE language arts students, the middle school parent-faculty club sponsored a semester-long Poet-In-The-School program.

Instruction was provided each Tuesday in the library by Maria Gitin, a poet provided by the California Arts Council. Students and teachers studied and wrote a variety of poetry which was collected and published in the form of a journal.

As you read some of the selections, it will become clear to you, as it did to me, that we are blessed with an abundance of natural talent here at Carmel Middle School.

Ode to an Old Friend

So withered with age your old hands rest on the blue silk coverlet. Your veins match it.
This house smells of wine and smoke you always smoke, though it makes you cough.
Those eyes - they strike out at me so filled with loss of husband, loss of her children, though they are living still.
I am worried about you, tired one. You gave so much that I can never repay.
Always here for me no matter what.
Cry on my shoulder & I'll cry on yours.
They took advantage of your weakness. Please hold on tight - don't let them take you away.
I always worry, that one day I'll come here, and I'll search for you but you'll be gone - stolen away by those children of yours & placed in a rest home.
How old are you? pushing eighty now isn't it?
soft face shows it, but not that hair - still black as a crow's wing.
Eyes are watery, hands gnarled.
You are still the beauty you once were - inside.

too much sun in it's life.
It's still beautiful in a

but I know they're wrong.
Even though I love it
I'm glad I'm still on the tree.

Fly.
Fly over them.
dipping, looping, gunning

crashing, captured prison. forever?
Too strong a word.
We wait here for his return, seeing no one.
Him in pain somewhere. Prison.
the bars of a cage cast light over the floor. Bars of hope
We wait here for his return.

She waits also.
Tears in her eyes staring at the colors of closed eyelids
Behind open doors. Past the guard and into the cell where he lies. Waiting
The sun can be seen no longer as it dips down. They have

Humpback Whales

I swim the ocean from end to end
Eating swimming playing. Singing my mysterious song through the great,
lonely depths of the sea.
Then the land walkers come,
hunting my brothers, killing the elders;
who once roamed free.
With great fire throwers that tear painfully in my flesh. Hauling the great spirit that once lived inside of me out, as cold, dark death takes over
The sea our home is no more. We, the once great dwellers of the sea, are no more....

Golf Ball

I do lead a hazardous life (pardon the pun) but the life of a golf ball isn't easy with sand getting in my eyes and mouth
I say just because I don't talk that doesn't give them a right to hit me. They poke my so-called "dimples"...Ouch!
"They are my pores." I would say if I could talk
When they...they leave me...If it's not in water it's in mud
Then for all I know I could be picked up by a sparrow or even a bluejay...and taken off to some far off nest...then just as I become acquainted I was stolen by a weasel...again thought to be an egg...how insulting.....but my shell would protect me from being unraveled...hopefully...
Gosh this is a tough life to live but do I have a choice?

Clas Brown
Eighth Grade

Great am I
Feared am I
Warmed by my friend the sun
Below the sky
Lives I
The ocean, the powerful one
I'm water, salt, and other things
I support life and life I can bring.
Sometimes I'm calm and by humans
Enjoyed
But I become stormy when greatly annoyed.
That, you see
Is when they fear me
I can ruin their homes and towns
I can cause any land animal to drown
I can bring life, destruction or fun
I am the ocean, the powerful one

Horsing around

CAROUSELS ARE coming to Carmel.

There won't be cotton candy and popcorn hawked on the street, however.

M. David Bury's Carousel of Carmel is for connoisseurs, not hucksters.

Bury said the shop in Bonnymead Court on Lincoln near Ocean will feature everything and anything to do with carousels, including "full-size, full-scale reproductions, limited edition smaller sculptures and miniatures."

Calm down. Full-scale means replicas of carousel animals, not the whole ride. Don't go down to Lincoln expecting to buy a ticket and catch the brass ring. (Though the person who can resist a ride on a carousel has a suspect character, in my opinion.) He will have full carousels, but they are of the smaller variety, strictly for show.

In addition to reproductions, Bury will carry artwork about carousels, jewelry, stained glass and books and literature on the subject.

Interest in preserving this unique form of art has increased over time, Bury said, as more and more carousels are disappearing.

They were simply "bulldozed right over in the past," he said, "with their priceless horses." But that is changing.

Now people are becoming more interested in preserving and restoring the hand-carved beasties.

Those elegant scrolled and decorated equines, Bury said, were carved by hand, often by European immigrants. Collectors can distinguish between horses by Charles Loof and those done at the Phildelphia Toboggan Co. (which made the carousels for Coney Island.)

"I'm interested in authentic designs," Bury said, as created by a "number of carvers for the 1800s to the 1920s and '30s." He will not carry original pieces right now, but does know where to find them, he added. Most of his large pieces will be reproductions.

Some of the "lead" horses by the more famous companies, like the Philadelphia Toboggan Co. and carvers like Loof, can command prices of $50,000 to $60,000. The smaller "inside" horses can go for $5,000.

The origins of carousels, Bury said, actually go as far back as medieval jousting when knights practiced with wooden horses on wheels.

M. DAVID Bury with a friend, part of the merchandise he will offer in his new shop, Carousel of Carmel. Bury's shop is dedicated to all manner of the carnival rides, including reproductions of carousel animals and art depicting carousels. The shop, which replaces Gallery Artique, is located in Bonnymead Court on Lincoln Street. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Bury's interest in carousels began when he rode the "famous carousels in Asbury Park, New Jersey" and through his longtime friendship with Charlotte Dinger, author of Art of the Carousel.

Dinger's collection of carousel animals and her knowledge of the subject has made her "internationally famous," Bury added.

If those days of riding in graceful circles to happy music make you smile, you can learn more at his grand opening starting at 1 p.m., Sunday, Feb. 22. Bury said Dinger will be at the shop to autograph her book and he is donating a copy to the Harrison Memorial Library.

GIVING AN ACCOUNTING

Where has Chris McKay, formerly general manager of the Pine Inn, gotten himself off to? It's a question numerous people have asked me since he decided to leave the hotel and strike out on his own.

McKay is right here in town and has been appointed director of management advisory services for Richard C. Vance, a Carmel certified public accounting firm.

The position incorporates McKay's prior 13 years of experience as a hotel consultant, accountant, restaurateur and hotel owner.

The management advisory services, McKay said, will concentrate on the hospitality/leisure time industry and evaluate financial performance and businesses versus development acquistion ("buy and sell" to the rest of us). McKay explained that they analyze profit improvement using a computer system and will also assist in securing finances.

REAL ESTATE TODAY

Who Will Buy?

By Jayde Thompson

"How can I possibly find a buyer for my home? There are so many homes on the market, who could be interested in mine?"

You'd be surprised at how many people would be seriously interested in purchasing your home, if only they knew about it! There are a number of ways you can let them know it's for sale. One is the Multiple Listing Service (MLS), a service that spreads the news that your home is for sale to all the Realtors in your area. The MLS book that lists your home also provides a brief decription of its layout and amenities.

Many people also choose to advertise in the real estate section of the local paper or magazine. And another surprisingly effective selling tool is the tried and true "For Sale" sign.

But perhaps the most important sales "device" is the personal contact. And that's where I come in. As a professional Realtor I meet people every day who are actively looking for a home. It's my job to match them up with the homes I know are availble. The wise professional Realtor knows that for every home there's a buyer!

So, if you're going to sell your home, don't worry, do it the easy way; call me, Jayde Thompson, your Carmel specialist at Real Estate By The Sea at 624-1444 or stop by my office at San Carlos and Seventh.

Some advice McKay gives right off the top is to set targets and don't focus on the bottom line, focus on the middle line. Two primary reasons for failure in this area, he added, are uninformed management and spending too much — right from the start.

McKay also feels that the "disposable dollars" of tourists in the area have dropped. Many "yuppies" or baby-boomers are now having children and cannot afford to spend the cash on leisure activities they once did.

"They are more budget conscious," McKay said.

Vance wrote of the new enterprise that, "Our intention is to provide to the hospitality/leisure time industry the type of service necessary to survive in today's competitive environment. During the past few months we have seen signs of problems with some of the best operators in the area.

"This stresses an essential need for management advisory services to help identify and resolve problems before they get out of hand."

BATHROOM BEAUTY

Robert Seger of Seger's Kitchens and More on Mission has even more now. In addition to that shop, he's opened a new store, Baths and Kitchens of Carmel at 26386 Carmel Rancho Lane.

The Carmel Rancho location, Seger said, emphasizes bathroom fixtures, accessories and design work, though the same is available for kitchens.

At this shop "it's 90 percent bathrooms and 10 percent kitchens," he said.

The shop offers everything from tubs to towel racks, including tile, cabinets, robe hooks and toilet paper holders, Seger explained.

They will even, if desired, redesign the entire room.

"We can take a small bath and make it bigger," he said.

His secret? "We do it with magic."

He does not, however, sell rabbits and top hats.

CHANGEOVER

It didn't take Dee Borsella long to move once she decided to do it. Already her boutique, Borsella, has vacated its location at the Pine Inn block on Lincoln between Ocean and Sixth and been replaced with another shop, Clarity Cosmetique and Boutique.

Clarity is owned by Michael and Bonnie Borofka, who have started their own boutique, featuring not only clothing, but their own line of skin care and cosmetic products.

The comsmetic and skin care line, Michael Borofka said, is all natural, without animal or mineral oils and no dyes. It was developed, he said, about seven years ago here in Carmel.

In the shop, they will give demonstrations but no complete facials, he added.

The clothing also reflects the all-natural philosophy. Mostly from "smaller designers," their fashions have no artifical fabrics at all. Bonnie herself designs about 10 percent of the merchandise, Borofka said, especially a raw silk line she has developed over the years.

BITS AND PIECES

Just in case you go temporarily blind every time you walk the block of San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth, Simic Galleries is expanding into the former location of Loren Adams Gallery — which also was, prior to Adams, the Connoisseur Gallery...Lucy Cunningham will be opening the Lucy Cunningham Gallery in the former location of Carmel Referral Service in Bonnymead Court on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh. Cunningham told the planning commission she will use the space as a studio as well as a gallery...Simply Nuts — dedicated to the sale of nuts, packaged nut candies and related nut items — will replace Plaza Tobacco and Pipe Shop in Carmel Plaza.

Carmel's Naturally Yogurt will take over the Gift Garden in the Carmel Plaza. Naturally Yogurt will sell frozen yogurt...Reliable sources say that the GroveMont Theater Arts Center has made a bid to take over the now vacant Studio Theatre on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. There is an application before the Carmel Planning Commission to change the dinner/theater house into an art gallery, however.

CHRIS MCKAY, former manager of the Pine Inn, is alive and well and living in Carmel. He is now the director of management advisory services for Richard C. Vance, a certified public accounting firm. McKay took over the management of the Pine Inn after Max McKee sold the property about a year ago. McKay decided to strike out in new directions this past December.

'Stories for Adults' presented

Monterey Public Library will present "Stories for Adults" featuring Ashley Ramsden at 1 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 19, in the community room of the library. "A Story Sampler" will be featured with selections from a variety of sources, including Dickens and Saki.

Ages 16 and up are invited to attend and admission is free. The library is located at 625 Pacific St. in Monterey.

School fund-raiser

An arts and crafts fair, a flea market and a raffle will be some of the fund-raising events 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21, at Carmel Middle School, Carmel Valley Road, Carmel Valley.

Raffle prizes include a 15-speed mountain bike, two cases of wine, lunch at the Hog's Breath Inn, a Safeway gift certificate, a Heartbreak Ridge poster autographed by Clint Eastwood, artworks, jewelry, theater tickets, one hour of legal services, massage and a haircut.

Activities will include a bake sale, book sale and teacher dunk, where students buying tickets will get the chance to dunk their teachers and administrators in a tank of cold water.

For information, donations and reservation for spaces, call Nancy Dice at 659-4835 or Linda Baker at 659-3252.

OBITUARIES

James R. Townsend

Cremation took place at Little Chapel by-the-Sea for James Reilly Townsend of San Francisco and Carmel who died Feb. 6 at Community Hospital. He was 82.

Born June 4, 1904 in Victoria, B.C., he maintained a second home in Carmel since 1945, and moved here permanently a year ago.

A well-known international fishery consultant, he was the owner of Net Products Co. of San Francisco.

He was a graduate of Washington School of Fisheries. He was a member of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, Berkeley Masonic Lodge, National Fisheries Institute and Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Jean; a daughter, Lorene Goodrich of Carmel; a sister, Abigail Townsend of Victoria; four brothers, Robert of San Francisco, Fred of Victoria, and Arthur and David, both of Vancouver; and one grandchild.

No services were planned. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Salvation Army.

Phyllis H. Walker

Cremation has taken place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove for Phyllis Heath Walker, a retired English teacher, who died Jan. 28 at Canterbury Woods in Pacific Grove. She was 85.

Born Sept. 8, 1901 in Palo Alto, she had been a teacher for 30 years. In addition to teaching high school English in Carmel, she also taught in Redlands and Berkeley.

Survivors include a daughter, Shelley Meltzer of Santa Cruz; a son, Bradford of Kalamazoo, Mich.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

At her request, no services were planned. Cremation was under the direction of the Paul Mortuary.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Canterbury Woods or the American Friends Service Committee.

Frank A. White

Recitation of the Rosary took place Feb. 6 at the Paul Mortuary Chapel, and a memorial Mass was celebrated Feb. 7 at St. Angela's Catholic Church in Pacific Grove for Frank A. White of Carmel Valley, a retired building contractor who died Feb. 3 at Community Hospital. He was 81.

Born in Watertown, S.D., he was a Pacific Grove resident for 45 years, and moved to Carmel Valley after his retirement in 1983.

He was a member of St. Angela's Catholic Church, the Knights of Columbus, Monterey Elks Lodge 1285 and Carpenters Union Local 1323 of Monterey.

Survivors include his wife, Neeta; a sister, Helen Lucas of San Jose; a brother, Joseph of Campbell; three grandsons and several nieces and nephews. His daughter, Sharon Viall, died in 1984.

Private cremation was followed by scattering of ashes at sea.

The family prefers memorial contributions to the American Cancer Society or the American Lung Association.

Lee B. Goff

Private cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for retired Army Col. Lee B. Goff, whose long military career included service during both world wars, who died Feb. 2 at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital. He was 90.

Born in Chicago on May 19, 1896, he trained with the 10th Field Artillery in Arizona. He was gassed in World War I and survived the second battle of the Marne River. He was later ordered to learn to fly, soloed in a Piper Cub and became executive officer of an Army Air Corps flying school near Sacramento. He spent about 10 years as co-commander of a Civilian Conservation Corps unit east of Fresno, after President Franklin D. Roosevelt created the CCC in the '30s.

He also served at Fort Ord, when the 7th Infantry Division, under Gen. Joseph Stilwell, was being organized there. During World War II, he attained the rank of colonel in the Army reserve and was sent to Guam by the Veterans Administration.

After 30 years in the army, he retired in 1944, and worked in a civil service position until 1956.

Col. Goff and his wife moved to the peninsula in 1956. living first in Carmel and in recent years at Pacific Grove Convalescent Hospital.

He was a member of the Disabled American Veterans of Monterey.

Survivors include his wife, Eleanor; a son, Lee Jr. of Greenville, Texas, who is a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel; a daughter, Eleanor Doerfler of New York City; four grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandson.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggest memorial contributions to Forest Hill Manor.

Margaret M. Peebles

Memorial services took place Jan. 27 at St. John's Chapel in Monterey for Margaret Miller Peebles of Pebble Beach, who died Jan. 21 at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco. She was 71.

Born March 9, 1915 in Duluth, Minn., she devoted much of her life to golf and golfing activities. She had been a director of the Women's Golf Association of Northern California and was a life member of the American Horse Show Association and a member of the Monterey Peninsula Golf and Country Club.

A charter member of the California Women's Amateur Championship Committee, she designed the logo for the organization. She also was active in the United Volunteer Services.

Survivors include a sister, Betty Russell of Wayzate, Minn., and many nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorial contributions to a charity of the donor's choice, or the David D. Pebbles Scholarship Fund at the University of California, Davis.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Despite all the publicity about Alzheimer's disease, the fact remains that it affects only a minority of the elderly. Among those 65 and older, only 5 to 15 percent have any kind of intellectual impairments, and Alzheimer's accounts for just half of those. Medical experts estimate that approximately 20 percent of people over age 80 suffer from Alzheimer's. However, there are many other causes of memory impairment in the elderly. If you or a loved one show signs of failing memory at any age, see a physician to determine the cause.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Lend a sympathetic ear

Rotary, Carmel by the Sea
Feb. 10, 1982

How many times a day do we say "How are you — Como esta usted, viejo? Once in a while, we are shocked when someone takes us seriously and begins to tell us with vivid and clinical detail how they really feel. They begin a litany of aches and pains, real and imaginary and with gory detail they tell us of virulent flu from Hong Kong and of operations and broken bones. Our inclination is to run and hide and we say to ourselves oh why, oh why didn't I just say to this bloody boor, "Hi!"

However, this might be the ideal time to remember the new ad of the Telephone Company — "reach out and touch someone." To listen to a person's ills, pains and problems with compassion and understanding, to allow them your precious time to verbalize about their hurt, is an admirable way that we can serve our neighbor even if it is far beyond the call of ordinary duty.

By giving our neighbor a kindly ear, we can help them to come to terms with mental and physical pain. Finally, let us remember that there is a world of difference between giving a handout and holding a hand out.

Hadassah presents fashion show

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter of Hadassah will present a glamorous fashion show and luncheon at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, Saturday, Feb. 21 at noon.

Senior legislature filing period open until March 2

The filing period is open for election to the California Senior Legislature, a nonpartisan, grassroots body that proposes laws to meet the needs and concerns of California's four million elderly.

To get on the ballot for senior senator or senior assembly member, interested Monterey County residents must obtain at least 25 signatures from other county residents who are age 60 or older and registered voters. Candidates must also be age 60 or older and a registered voter.

The candidate petition may be obtained from the Area Agency on Aging, 76 Stephanie Drive, Salinas, CA 93901, and must be completed and returned by March 2, 1987.

The election will be held March 17, 1987 by the Area Agency on Aging.

Re-evaluation weekend slated

The Beginning Experience, Monterey Bay Team, announces that if you are divorced, separated or widowed, you are invited to attend a weekend designed to help you deal with your feelings and grow in self awareness.

The first weekend for 1987 will be Feb. 27, 28 and March 1 at St. Francis Camp in La Selva Beach. The weekend is a time and a place where people can come together to re-evaluate themselves and their lives, make a "closure" on the past, and move on to the future with renewed hope.

For more information and to make reservations, call Beginning Experience at (408) 422-2640 or 394-2945.

Contacts sought for incarcerated

Worshippers in the 46 parishes of the Monterey Catholic Diocese and the 42 Episcopalian Parishes of El Camino Real Diocese, are being challenged to practice some of Christ's most difficult teachings on Detention Weekend, Feb. 21-22.

The Detention Ministry Advisory Board is looking for Christians willing to help in some way the 17,000 souls incarcerated in prisons by being a pen pal, a prayer pal, a visitor or contribute to the expenses of families eager to visit their loved ones and cannot afford the cost of transportation, meals and lodging.

The contact person for Catholic Social Services in the Northern area is Sister Alice Larsen, 394-4656.

Monterey County Cultural Council awards grants

THE MONTEREY County Cultural Council announced last week that $143,417 will be awarded to 35 Monterey County Cultural organizations during the council's next board meeting, noon Monday, Feb. 23, at The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific Street, Monterey.

The council's guest of honor will be Monterey County Board of Supervisors member Sam Karas, who, according to Rivers, "was instrumental during the 1985-86 fiscal year in acquiring county support for the arts through the general fund. Without Supervisor Karas' strong interest in the cultural life of the entire county, these funds might never have been forthcoming. This money is a tremendous step in helping all cultural organizations to meet some of their goals."

The process of selecting the recipients of the grants was headed by Cultural Council Board member Richard Tyler, director of Carmel's Sunset Center. Tyler, as chairman of the Council's Grant Review Committee, worked with a panel of eight reviewers in determining the allocation of the funds. The review panel, consisting of Monterey County residents who collectively balanced interest and expertise in various arts disciplines, geographic representation and ethnic diversity, met several times to evaluate the grant applications and, according to Tyler, "had a difficult time in reaching their final decisions."

"I can't emphasize enough," Tyler said, "how appreciative the entire council is for the panel's performance. They (the panel) were absolute miracle workers in distributing the funds, especially given the fact that a total of $263,771 was requested. It was very difficult to turn anyone down."

Once the review panel had made their decisions, the Cultural Council Board voted to approve their action and submitted the council's request to the board of supervisors.

"I'm pleased to announce that the supervisors accepted both the panel and the council's recommendations unanimously," Tyler said. "The cooperative teamwork was exceptional, especially in light of the very short timeframe in which everyone was operating."

The grants have been awarded in two categories: Institution and Project, with two-thirds of the funds awarded in the Institution category. Projects are for specific activities while the Institution money generally will be used for the overall operation of the cultural organization.

The awards represent a significant increase over the 1985-86 fiscal year when $50,200 was given.

Cultural groups receiving funding in the Institution category are:

Camerata Singers, Mont. Co., Carmel Bach Festival, Chamber Music Society, City of Salinas — Steinbeck Library/Festival, Hidden Valley Music Seminars, Lyceum of Mont. Peninsula, Monterey Co. Historical Soc., Monterey Co. Symphony Assoc., Monterey Pen. Museum of Art, Pacific Grove Art Center, Salinas Concert Assoc., San Antonio Valley Historical Soc., Carl Cherry Foundation, Carmel Music Society, Children's Experimental Theatre, Forest Theatre Guild, GroveMont Theatre Arts Center, I Cantori Di Carmel, Monterey Co. Agricultural & Rural Life Museum, Montery Pen. Concert Assoc., Music Teacher's Assoc. Mont. Co., P.G. Museum of Natural History, Salinas Valley Art Assoc. and Youth Orchestra of Mont. Co.

Cultural groups receiving funding for Special Projects include:

Alisal H.S. Assoc. Student Body (Center for Fine Arts), Handicapped Activities, Unltd., Monterey Co. Theatre Alliance, Monterey Pen. Airport Dist., Summer Music Monterey, Foundation for Creativity, Friday's Child, Monterey Bay Symphony Assoc., Monterey Film Festival, Seaside Art Commission.

The public is invited to the Grants Award meeting. Additional information can be obtained by calling Brenda King at the Cultural Council's office, (408) 646-4251.

Racewalkers assemble in Valley for annual 50K championship

SOME OF THE fastest racewalkers in the country will be competing in the U.S. National 50K Racewalk Championship at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club 7 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 22nd.

The top five men emerging from Sunday's race will compete in the men's 50K World Cup on May 3rd in New York City.

The race, will be held at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. The course, on a 2,500 meter loop, runs back and forth on Valley Greens Drive, and is considered ideal for a fast race, being paved all the way and shaded by trees.

Carmel resident Giulio de Petra, race director and president of the Monterey Peninsula Walk Walk Walk Club which is hosting the race, says, "I wouldn't be surprised if the racewalkers broke the four-hour wall for the 50K and established a new world record for the distance."

Spectators will have an opportunity to witness American champions in full stride. The 50K race is a true athletic trial of strength. The winners, who are competing for a berth on the U.S. Racewalking team, face extremely strong racewalking teams from Mexico, Italy, Russia and East Germany in the upcoming World Cup. The race on Washington's birthday promises to be a race of champions.

The main sponsor of the National 50K Racewalk Championship is the Mazola Corn Oil Company who will also sponsor the World Cup in New York City. Local support, in addition to the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, is being given by the Kiwanis of Monterey, Y.M.C.A. of the Monterey Peninsula, Hidden Valley Music Seminars and the Treadmill Sports Boutique.

The rare is open only to athletes registered with The Athletic Congress.

'Ain't Misbehavin' showcases upgraded Fort Ord stage

By SALLY FINEGAN

MICHAEL E. CHEAK has his hands full.

The director of the theater program at Fort Ord, Cheak is overseeing its expansion to include a new facility. Marking the theater's opening Friday, Feb. 20, will be Fats Waller's musical romp, Ain't Misbehavin'," in its peninsula premiere.

Cheak, wearing a T-shirt, jeans and suspenders, apologized for being sweaty and took a break one day last week from overseeing construction of the temporary stage at Fort Ord. He talked about the production and the expansion of Fort Ord's theater program.

Ain't Misbehavin' will play on a temporary stage for five weeks, Cheak explained. Then the sets will be torn down and a $60,000 renovation of the theater will begin. The permanent stage is scheduled to be completed July 1.

Cheak, who microwaved Jesus in Godspell and produced Evita in the round (the audience wrapped around the stage) at Fort Ord, said he is directing a more straightforward production of Ain't Misbehavin'.

The five-member cast and three-member band will give the first all-black performance at Fort Ord, he said. Cast members are Pat Turner, Marchelle Hill, Brad Vaughn, Sheila Stevenson and David Williams. Band members are Marvin McKnight, Joe Grey and Richard (Snoopy) Hall.

"I hope everybody will come and see the show," he said. "I picked it because sometimes people feel I ignore the black community on post. I feel that isn't necessarily true."

The high-spirited revue-style musical will feature 1930s jazz and the best of Fats Waller, including such blues hits as "Your Feet's Too Big," "Two Sleepy People," "T'aint Nobody's Biz-ness If I Do" and "Ain't Misbehavin'."

"This has been a real traumatic show," Cheak said. In five weeks of rehearsal, he has had to replace two cast members. (One person was sent into the field and another broke a leg.)

But Cheak has high hopes for the production.

"I've got three gorgeous ladies," he said. "Not like the Broadway production (which featured Nell Carter)." All in the cast have fine voices, he added.

'EVITA WAS the springboard for the new building and the expansion of the program," Cheak said of the production which won best of festival and many other first- and second-place awards at a nationwide military competition last year.

"The commanding general came to see Evita and saw people being turned away."

Evita, along with Jesus Christ Superstar and Godspell, had been put on at the 100-seat Cabaret Theatre at Fourth Street and Fourth Avenue, Fort Ord. The new theater will seat 600.

"Tell me if I'm frightened," Cheak quipped, laughing.

The commanding general asked Cheak if he wanted to take on the unused main stage, which until October had served as a movie theater, and Cheak said he did.

So now Cheak will be working with both theaters.

"The Fort Ord main stage will be one of the larger peninsula performance halls," he said. He said he plans to put on either two large-scale musicals per year or one musical and one play. He said he will also use the larger stage as a concert stage and forum for guest performers.

"I'm not going to get Mick Jagger here," he said "(but) we have a need for another place dedicated specifically to performances."

The smaller Cabaret Theatre will be used for experimental theater projects, a new luxury that Cheak is excited about since his budget in the past did not allow for risky projects.

BECAUSE OF military bureaucracy, Cheak always has to be three to four months ahead of schedule, he said. Right now he is holding auditions for 1776, a musical based on the signing of the Declaration of the Independence.

"It's a lot more fun than it sounds," Cheak said. "It gets under the powdered wigs of our founding fathers."

Cheak, who took best of festival in the categories of director, light design and set design in last year's production of Evita, said he is proud of the theater he has produced in the past four years.

"We very seldom have anybody come out here and say, 'It stunk,' " he said of productions including Crucifer of Blood and Bus Stop. "We do good enough work that the critics can come out here and criticize. There's nothing they'd come in and throw their hands up and say, 'Oh, my God.' "

Although military personnel and their families make up about 75 percent of cast and crew members, the theater program is open to everyone, Cheak said.

"I like working in community theater," he said. "I try never to lose track of the main reason I'm here — to provide a creative outlet and to do a good job on shows."

"We're growing," Cheak said. "I think the Monterey Peninsula has some real exciting things going ... Good theater breeds good theater."

"What we need to do here is to get people in the building," he said, adding that a personal goal is to get the enlisted men out of the barracks.

Patrons of Ain't Misbehavin' will not have to get passes at Fort Ord, he said. (People should tell the guard at the main gate their destination is the Fort Ord Main Stage.)

Tickets are $6 civilian, $4 military. For more information or ticket reservations, call 242-6337.

FATS WALLER'S collection "of jam, jive and ... everythang" lights up the Fort Ord presentation of Ain't Misbehavin' on the main stage at the facility. The show opens at 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 20, and continues Fridays through Sundays until March 21. For ticket information, call 242-6337.

Mardi gras/masquerade unfurls Friday in Monterey

AN AUTHENTIC New Orleans style Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball comes to Monterey on Friday, Feb. 20th, when the downtown Sheraton Hotel comes alive in a swirl of color, light and music. The ball is co-sponsored by the Monterey Sheraton and by public radio station KAZU.

Jake Stock and the Abalone Stompers, whose jazz style derives directly from New Orleans, will headline the event. 'Papa Jake', his clarinet and his band have been entertaining audiences throughout the area for decades. The Stompers opened the first Monterey Jazz Festival in 1958, appearing with Louis Armstrong and many other jazz greats.

The Stompers have also performed at the Sacramento Dixieland Jubilee, the Crosby/Pro-Am, Dixieland Monterey and other festivals. They appear frequently at the River Inn in Big Sur and at the Catalyst in Santa Cruz, among other venues. They also have three recordings available: 'Papa Jake', 'Jake Stock Live at the River Inn' and 'With Love, Jake.'

The Stompers starts with Jake — as old as the Carmel Mission but more fun — on reeds, along with son Jackson on trombone; veteran cornetist Jackie Coon; banjoist Eddie Erickson; tubaist Alan O'Dea; drummer Edward Graham, and pianists Andrew Fielding and Bob Phillips.

The Stompers starred at a benefit dance for KAZU in 1980 at the old San Carlos Hotel in Monterey.

Another band ready to play on Feb. 22th will be the Fabulous Bagtones, which began life as an informal group three years ago. Word of mouth turned into popular demand, and the Bagtones now play frequent party dates. Three of the members — lead guitarist Paul Alessini, guitarist Mike Eckstrom, and bassist Rick Wolter — are veteran announces of KAZU. Other Bagtone members are Dan Beck, vocalist; Kenny Kip, saxophone; Jeff Champlin, keyboards, and either Vince Oles or Thom Ayres, drums.

The Bagtones played a successful benefit for KAZU last year as well. Rock and rhythm and blues are their forte.

Rounding out the musical portions of the Mardi Gras feast will be the Aptos High School Jazz Band, a much-traveled and much-honored group that has toured Hawaii and Japan as well as winning competitions from other school bands.

But other action at the KAZU-Monterey Sheraton Mardi Gras will also remind people of New Orleans. A King and Queen will be crowned, and everyone attending is encouraged to come in costume. The Clown of Hearts in Santa Cruz will provide decorations and Splash of Color of Santa Cruz will offer face painting.

KAZU, now in the midst of its 10th year on the air, is a station whose programming is often reminiscent of New Orleans. Blues, traditional jazz, New Orleans piano, rhythm and blues, zydeco and other styles are highlights in the station's schedule. All programmers are volunteers who bring their own expertise — and records — to the station to do their shows.

PAPA JAKE Stock, his clarinet, and the other members of the Abalone Stompers will headline at the Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball on Friday, Feb. 20.

Located at 90.3 FM, the 4200 watt station serves a potential market of a half-million listeners throughout the greater Monterey-Santa Cruz area. Its steady growth in popularity is shown by the fact that its most recent fund-raisers have either sold out early or pulled in far more revenues than expected.

Tickets for the Mardi Gras are available at KAZU (phone 375-7275 during usual office hours or visit the station at 582 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove), at Cymbeline Records in downtown Santa Cruz and at Center Stage Ticketing in downtown Monterey. All tickets are $10.

Jazz Press poetic trio reads original works in Pacific Grove

THREE WRITERS featured in the Jazz Press Poet Santa Cruz series, including a Pacific Grove writer, will read from their works 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 19, at Bookworks, 662 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. The event is free and open to the public.

William Minor, of Pacific Grove was represented in the fourth book of this series, and has published four books of poetry: Pacific Grove (1974), For Women Missing or Dead (1977), Goat Pan (1984) and Natural Counterpoint (1985). He is an artist who has exhibited at the Pennsylvania Academy and Smithsonian Institution. His prose fiction has appeared in Best Little Magazine Fiction, Quilt, the Kansas Quarterly and other journals, and his articles on jazz have appeared in a number of newspapers and magazines. He is presently an Englisxh instructor at Monterey Peninsula College.

George Fuller is a poet whose first book was Adam & Eve, etc. (1981). He is represented in volume two of Poet Santa Cruz, and a third book, Preparing for Paradise, is forthcoming. He has run Jazz Press in Santa Cruz for 10 years and has published 25 books of poetry, short stories and art work. At present he is the editor of Monterey Life magazine. He hosts a radio jazz program ("Straight from the Heart," 10 to midnight Mondays) on radio station KAZU, is active in the National Writers Union and is instrumental — along with Raymond Mungo — in the success of the recent Writers Jamboree held in Monterey. Together with Robert Sward, he edits the quarterly Poet Santa Cruz, which features the work of Santa Cruz/Monterey Bay area poets.

Robert Sward, a much respected, formerly Canadian poet now living in Santa Cruz, was featured in the first volume of the Jazz Press series. He is the author of 12 other books of poetry, including Uncle Dog & Other Poems (1962), Thousand Year Old Fiancee (1965), Gift (1971), The Iowa Poems (1975), Honey Bear on Lasqueti Island, B.C. (1978) and Half a Life's History — Selected Poems (1983). He has authored a novel, The Jurassic Shales (1975) and a book of non-fiction, The Toronto Islands (1983). He has taught at the University of California at Santa Cruz, and currently teaches at MPC and with Spectra (Artists in the Schools).

Course demystifies collecting of mushrooms

Recent rains promise a large crop of wild mushrooms, and mushroom expert David Arora warns the public not to eat them indiscriminately.

"There are more than 1,000 local varieties, most of which are edible," says Arora, "but the poisonous ones are very common and have caused many deaths over the years in the Monterey Bay area."

"Unfortunately," continues Arora, "there is no single rule of thumb for distinguishing the edible ones from the poisonous, except by learning to identify each and every kind. Simple tests such as whether or not the mushroom peels easily or grows on trees or blackens a silver coin are erroneous, and an invitation to disaster."

Arora, who is the author of the field guide Mushrooms Demystified, is teaching a three-day course on wild mushroom identification for those who are curious about the fungi they encounter. The course, sponsored by the Elkhorn Slough Foundation, will include field collecting and identification of specimens as well as daily laboratory work examing the microscopic structure of some of these fascinating fungi.

The course is scheduled Sundays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 15 through March 1 and a third date to be arranged depending on collecting conditions. The class will meet in Moss Landing.

Fee for the course is $38 and includes all laboratory equipment. The course is open to anyone with a well developed interest in mushrooms — their indentification, structure and natural history. Previos experience and classwork are desireable but not required.

For more information and/or an application send a self addressed, stamped envelope to: Mushroom Class/Elkhorn Slough Programs, P.O. Box 267, Moss Landing, CA 95039 or call 728-2822.

Ain't Misbehavin'

The peninsula's newest theater opens Friday, Feb. 20, with Fats Waller's musical romp, Ain't Misbehavin', to mark the expansion of the Fort Ord Cabaret Theatre program to include the Fort Ord Main Stage.

The peninsula premiere of the high-spirited musical features 1930's jazz and includes such Waller blues hits as "Your Feet's Too Big," "Two Sleepy People," "T'aint Nobody's Biz-ness If I Do" and "Ain't Misbehavin'."

Ain't Misbehavin' will play at 8 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays through March 21 at the Fort Ord Main Stage on First Avenue. (Make a right at the Fort Ord Main Gate.) For ticket information and reservations, call 242-6337.

Shades of Stanley Ketchel

Shades of Stanley Ketchel, a world premiere storytelling performance, continues at the GroveMont Theater Arts Center in Monterey. The show employs story, song, anecdote, poetry and shadow boxing demonstrations to tell the tale of Middleweight Champion Stanley Ketchel, a contrasting enigma of violence and gentle sentimentality who reigned during the Ragtime Era.

The production was conceived and performed by Taelen Thomas, who was an active middleweight boxer before receiving degrees in philosophy from Stanford University and the University of Hawaii. He is a founding member of Michigan's Stone Circle Poets.

Shades of Stanley Ketchel will play successive Monday nights through March 2. The GroveMont Theater Arts Center is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in Monterey. Tickets are $5. For details, call 649-6852.

Starting Here, Starting Now

A newly remodeled Wharf Theatre is the setting for the musical, Starting Here, Starting Now. The Frohman Academy and the American Musical Theatre Festival are presenting the musical by David Shire and Richard Maltby Jr., which is directed and choreographed by Tony Award nominee Lara Teeter.

New York artists work alongside Frohman Academy students. Cast of this musical features Linda Hart, Tim Bowman and Betsy Joslyn.

Starting Here, Starting Now plays at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, and at 7:30 p.m. Sundays at the theater on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey and will continue through March 8.

Admission price is $9 Thursdays and Sundays, $10 Fridays and $11.50 Saturdays.

There is a $1 discount to all students, senior citizens and military personnel. There is a student/senior citizen rush for half-price tickets 30 minutes before curtain. Groups of 20 or more will receive a 15 percent discount on the full price ticket, except for preview and opening.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado, Suite 7, Monterey, 649-5561. Tickets will also be available at the theater box office 90 minutes prior to curtain.

To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday

To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday, Michael Brady's romantic play, is presented by the Monterey Peninsula College Players on the SRO Stage at the college.

Pamela Murphy directs this family drama. On the eve of his dead wife's birthday, a young widower wishes she would come back to life. Obligingly, the dead wife Gillian puts in a ghostly appearance and shares a secret with the mourning David.

The show continues Thursdays through Saturdays until Feb. 22. Tickets are $4 and $2. For reservations, call 646-4213 or 649-5561.

'night Mother

The Monterey Peninsula College Staff Players present 'night, Mother on the stage of the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. The drama plays Tuesday and Wednesday nights through March 4.

Nick Zanides directs the two-character play, which features Mindy Stock and Diane Holmes as a mother and daughter confronting suicidal desires. The play argues the pros and cons of suicide, and for this reason Suicide Prevention experts warn that audience members may consider discouraging suicide-prone acquaintances from attending this play.

'night, Mother earned its author, Marsha Norman, a Pulitzer Prize, the Hull-Warriner Award and the Susan Smith Blackburn Prize.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. The theater is located at 320 Hoffman in Monterey. Tickets are $7.50 general; $6 for students, seniors and active military, and $4 for Monterey Peninsula College or GroveMont season ticket holders. For reservations, call 649-6852 or 649-5561.

Company

Stephen Sondheim's ruefully humorous musical, Company, continues on the Main Stage of the Performing Arts Center at Hartnell College, Salinas. The Western Stage production of the award-winning work tells of Robert — Bobby to his friends — an unattached male who fears the only thing more to be feared than loving is being loved.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 20-21, and 2 and 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 22. Individual tickets for Friday and Saturday performances are $8.50; Thursday, Sunday and matinee ticket prices are $7.50. Children and senior citizens receive $1 off regular prices.

The theater is located at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead

'To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday' opens at S.R.O.

TO GILLIAN on Her 37th Birthday, the new drama which opened at Monterey Peninsula College's SRO Theatre this past weekend, is a play about loss.

In this case it is the loss of Gillian (Sheryl Griggs) — an independent, vivacious, risk-taking wife and mother of 35, a scientist who studied and wrote about primates — killed in a boating accident when she fell from a precarious perch on the mast of the family yacht during a storm.

The action of the play takes place two years later. Family and friends have gathered at the small cottage of David (Jerry Connelly,), Gillian's surviving husband, on a small island off the New England coast to see if anything can be done to nudge him back into life's mainstream after his too-long mourning period.

Rachel (Liz Schultz), the surviving teenage daughter, has found her father on several occasions on the beach at night in front of their cottage talking to his departed wife. Cindy (M. Ivy Cates), Rachel's close friend, is there too, supporting Rachel but with more than a small crush on David.

Gillian's serious-minded sister Esther (Yvonne Goodpasture) shows up with her wise-cracking husband Paul (Bill Houle) to offer David some support but also some strong, if unappreciated, familial advice. They have brought along with them, in a sense as romantic bait, Kevin (Gail Compeau), an attractive divorcee who makes no bones about being eager to get on with the business of fitting a new hunk into her life.

Gillian appears to David at various times during the play, as blithe and beguiling a spirit as found in Noel Coward's great comedy. But her message to David is a tough and unequivocal one: "David, I'm dead."

Loss is as much a part of the human condition as first date, first car, first job, first time. Some, tragically, lose parents at too early an age. Some, tragically, children. Others, tragically, mates. But to try to capture the depth of feeling experienced at such a level of loss onstage is a very difficult proposition indeed.

And, on that level, To Gillian only partially succeeds. David has plenty of words of mourning for Gillian's death. But not enough of the silences. There is a lot of soap opera in this play — people declaiming about how strongly they feel about their loss, but too often with a hedging, with a tendency to trivialize or discount somewhat the intensity and honesty of the emotion in order to carry something over into tomorrow's next exciting episode.

This is not a great play about loss, although it is not entirely a bad one either. The ideas are there. What is lacking is the depth. Tennessee Williams had that kind of depth in his Rose Tattoo. To Gillian hits somewhere between there and All My Children.

Jerry Connell, edgy and unfocused as David at first, works through a passable impersonation of Alan Alda's "Hawkeye" in M.A.S.H. to a reasonable but not particularly moving portrayal of the grieving husband.

Sheryl Griggs' Gillian is generally softly feminine and relaxed, exhibiting much good body English with more than a hint of the cantilevered pelvic walk she used so effectively as a king's coy dozy in last summer's Robin Hood at Carmel's Forest Theater.

THE GHOST of Mom hovers over her living daughter (Sheryl Griggs and Liz Schultz) as best wishes are expressed in *To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday.

Yvonne Goodpasture, tight, opinionated and combatative as the dead woman's sister, reaches a few brief touching moments while convincing David that her loss was every bit as painful and poignant as his own.

Gail Compeau, although never convincing as David's former jogging partner, displayed that rare ability to listen well on stage which forms an essential part of any good stage performance. The timbre of her "rusty gate" speaking voice was as appealing to this male ear as a surprise oboe solo in a Mozart symphony.

The veteran Bill Houle's Paul, although a big stereotypical of the joking, anecdotal, post-adolescent male, lent a measurable panache and ease of delivery to what has become his signature role.

The real surprise performances, however, were turned in by Liz Schultz and M. Ivy Cates as the teenage friends. By far the most moving scene of the play occurs just before intermission when Schultz, as the grieving daughter, cries out in anguish to the stars for her departed mother. And Cates, in a scene on the beach morosely nursing a wine bottle and another in which she awkwardly offers David a womanly comfort she senses and lets us sense is not yet sturdy enough, reaches well below the play's median depth. Maurice Chevalier sang it right: thank heaven for them all!

To Gillian plays Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights through Feb. 21. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Frohman opens 'Starting Here, Starting Now'

MONTEREY'S WHARF THEATER has been the scene of many a musical in the past few years, all of them scaled down to fit the Wharf's diminutive stage.

BROADWAY PROFESSIONALS Betsy Joslyn, Linda Hart and Tim Bowman perform in the Frohman Academy/-American Musical Theatre Festival production of the musical revue, Starting Here, Starting Now. It continues at the new Wharf Theatre in Monterey.

But Saturday night's opening of Starting Here, Starting Now introduced us to a whole new Wharf.

The theater has just been upgraded by its new tenant, the Frohman Academy, with new carpets, new lights, new seats, even a new stage. So Frohman's valentine to peninsula theatergoers marked the beginning of their Wharf tenancy, and the end, at least for the next two years, to their search for a theater home.

Starting Here, Starting Now, with lyrics by Richard Maltby Jr. and music by David Shire, is not a musical in the conventional sense of the term. The show has no characters, story line, or scenery, all of which are among the basic components of a musical. What it has instead is three performers — two women and one man — who sing, and occasionally dance, their way through 27 numbers in the course of the evening.

In place of plot and character, Starting Here, Starting Now offers progression of theme and mood. The show begins with songs about falling in love, moves on to songs about conflict and disappointment in relationships, then continues with songs about human nature and the quest for love generally.

Needless to say, a show like this succeeds or fails on the merit of the material and the talent of the performers. Under the musical direction of Paul Horner, the accompaniment is in good hands. Baby grand piano, bass and drums are visible behind the performers. The performers themselves are pros with Broadway credits who pump in a lot of energy and talent that give the evening great momentum.

The three are snappily directed by Tony Award nominee Lara Teeter, who has also choreographed the show with complex moves that are particularly impressive given the small stage space and the performers' joint skill.

Betsy Joslyn, Linda Candace Hart and Tim Bowman are well cast for a balance of tonal range and type.

Joslyn's well trained soprano voice and gift for expressing emotion through song are topped off with a comic talent. In "We Can Talk to Each Other," Joslyn struggles relentlessly to get a word in edgewise while Bowman rhapsodizes on the joy of perfect communication. In "I'm Going To Make You Beautiful," one of the few numbers with props, she powders, pats and paints an invisible customer within an inch of her life.

Hart is an equally strong, if sassier presence, effortlessly tossing off the show's most deliciously witty lyrics in a song that uses the Times crossword puzzle as a vehicle for ruminations about a faithless lover. Hart also lends a credible vulnerability and great vocal range to "A Girl You Should Know."

And all three performers really shine in the show's strongest numbers. "I Don't Believe It" is a sly sendup of romantic commonplaces. Performed with coy choreography reminiscent of quaint folk dances, this number takes aim at the little lies people tell each other so smugly.

But it was "One Step" that finally incited the audience to thunderous applause. A song about stepping forward into life, "One Step" comes the closest to a Broadway production number, top hats, white gloves, canes and high stepping included. And since it's the 24th number of the show's 27, it arrives at a handy time, fulfilling the audience's hunger for a Broadway-style production number.

A local cast will take over all three roles March 19th, having benefited from watching the pros perform until then, a fact that makes the current production of Starting Here, Starting Now, an unusual educational experience for local performers as well as a crowd-pleasing audience vehicle.

Just remember that it's a musical review, not a musical story, and if you enjoy Broadway music, you won't be disappointed.

Student artwork shown at foundation

Through the "Living is Learning" program sponsored by Monterey Peninsula College, an exhibition of paintings by the students of Carmel artist Elizabeth Palmer will be shown at the Carmel Foundation through Feb. 27.

The mixed media art class meets 1 to 4 p.m. every Monday at the foundation. Students work not only with fundamentals of drawing and painting, but are encouraged to increase awareness of seeing and feeling by experimenting through the creative process.

The foundation is on Lincoln and Eighth in Carmel.

De la Roche paintings featured

Images of the Monterey Peninsula, captured in the paintings of Janet de la Roche, will be exhibited through March 1 at High on the Hog Salon in Carmel.

High on the Hog is located upstairs next to the Hog's Breath Inn, San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth avenues. For show details, call 624-1330.

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

Concerts place focus on pianists

THIS WAS quite a week for lovers of the pianistic art. In three different media, we were treated to pianism of a very high caliber.

Misha and Cipa Dichter, duo-pianists, began the festivities on Wednesday, Feb. 11, as part of Carmel Music Society's season.

Four hands at one or two pianos is a step-child in the profession. For reasons that remain a mystery to any of us who have been seriously engaged in such ensembles, it is not generally regarded as chamber music. But it obviously is not solo music. Fortunately, there are artists unconcerned enough with classification to carry on the work which has boasted such greats as Josef and Rosina Lhevinne and Vronsky and Babin. Siblings and husband-and-wife teams have been the most successful.

The Dichters presented an entertaining and rewarding evening of two-piano music, starting with Mozart and coming into the 20th century. There is four-hand music before Mozart, but his contributions, together with those of his older contemporary, J.C. Bach, mark the beginning of a legitimate repertoire.

Mozart's D major sonata, K. 448, opened the program, in a decidedly upbeat, Rococo style — light and fast. The colorful Second Suite of Rachmaninoff, Op. 17, followed, rounding out the first half of the program.

Six etudes in the form of a canon, by Schumann, arranged by Debussy, must be the pieces originally intended for pedal pianoforte, a short-lived invention of the early 19th century. They are interesting pieces — not what we usually expect from Schumann, but rather a side of him not often exhibited. It was a pleasure to hear them.

Another transcription followed, El Salon Mexico of Aaron Copland, arranged by Leonard Bernstein. It was brilliant and effective. The program closed with Tres Danzas Andaluzas, by Manual Infante (1883-1958).

It was a very well-presented program, played with style and sensitivity. My only real gripe was the occasionally excessive use of the soft pedal, not least because there was an audible whine from at least one of the pianos each time the pedal was depressed.

ON SATURDAY night, the Chamber Music Society presented the Arden Piano Trio in an outstanding program that illustrated what happens to the piano when it is teamed with two solo strings — in other words, when everyone is a soloist. But everyone is also an ensemble player, and that is the excitement and beauty of the piano trio.

In a well-balanced program, designed to show off their versatility, the Arden Trio played Haydn, Saint-Saens and Ravel.

Haydn wrote 40-odd piano trios. They are uneven in quality, since no one had really invented the piano trio yet, and so it was left to Haydn. They are not often played, mostly because it is hard to find cellists who will play them. The cello parts tend to double the piano's left hand, as in the old basso continuo, and cellists would prefer to bow away on a Schubert trio. As this trio showed (Hob. XV:27, C major), there is a wealth of wit and sparkle, lyricism and poetry, in these works.

Haydn was followed by Saint-Saens Trio No. 2, a melodic and charming work that exhibits the best of Saint-Saens.

After intermission: the inimitable Ravel Trio in A minor. This work is Ravel at his peak in every element of the composer's art — it is, simply, great.

The Arden Trio (Suzanne Ornstein, violin; Clay Ruede, cello; Thomas Schmidt, piano) was wonderful. Each work was presented clearly within its own stylistic framework; each work was thoroughly thought-out and made intelligible. To do this, the musicians must have the kind of technique which makes it all look easy, solid musical knowledge, and an ensemble that breathes as one. They do.

SUNDAY BROUGHT Vladimir Ashkenazy, the great Russian-born pianist. However, since reviewer's tickets for the Pine Cone were recalled by the organizers of this series, this concert will not be reviewed. (Which explains why there was no review for Nelson Friere. A kindly colleague took me to Ashkenazy.) It is a pity, for it would be fun to write about this interesting artist who so generously donated this concert to the Keyboard Artist Series. That, in itself, speaks volumnes.

Photographs featured at Monterey museum of art

PHOTOGRAPHS BY William Giles and Brian Taylor, large scale mixed media paintings by Peter Wayne Lewis and works by members of the Peters' family are featured through March at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Non-silver photographic images of Stonehenge, The Great Pyramids, American Indian ruins and other "mystical" settings from artist and instructor Brian Taylor's travels will fill the Upstairs Hallway Gallery at the museum through March 29.

Taylor's prints begin by photographically transforming the subject onto watercolor paper, upon which he places additional layers of other media, including hand-colored areas of acrylic pigment. The end results are vividly colored interpretations of powerful landscapes which allow the viewer to experience the emotional or spiritual aspects of the subject.

Taylor, presently teaching photography at San Jose State University, has had his works published in journals such as Art in America and American Photographer.

A major exhibition of works by the Peter's family, Charles Rollo Peters, Constance Evans Peters and sons Charles Rollo Peters, Jr. and DeWitt Peters, is featured in the Work Gallery.

The exhibition, while charting the works of all the Peters', will concentrate on the work of Charles Rollo Peters, who was one of the foremost American exponents of nocturne paintings. The paintings, revealing a rather impressionistic quality and subtle narratives, combined with Peters' skillful craftsmanship and strong sense of color to make him a leading artist of his time.

Large scale mixed media painting by Jamaican-born artist Peter Wayne Lewis will be on display in the Asian Gallery until March 29.

Lewis' works reveal both spiritual and visual influences of his West Indian roots, combining rhythmic, gestural movements with heavily textured surfaces and bold, bright color.

Lewis has commented, "I think my paintings are a cross between communcation art and spiritual art...however, you, the viewer, determine the reality of what is seen in my painting — for the paintings live and die by your gaze."

The exhibition will be on display courtesy of the artist and several private leaders, and the show is co-sponsored by the Monterey Bay Chapter of Links, Inc.

A selection of 20 photographic enlargements of altered Polaroid SX-70 prints by William Giles will be on display in the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art's Coburn and Hallway galleries through March 15.

These innovative pieces begin as basic snapshots taken with a Polaroid camera. While they are developing Giles manipulates the surface of the print with blunt instruments, altering color, form and even composition. The altered prints are then enlarged to 20"x20", to better enable the viewer to "read" the new photographs.

Giles has works included in the collections of the Museums of Modern Art in New York and San Francisco, the George Eastman House and the Royal Academy of Arts in London.

The museum is located at 559 Pacific St. in Monterey, and is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays and is closed Mondays. Admission is free. For further informaion contact the museum at 372-5477.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Notice is hereby given that sealed proposals will be received at the City Hall, for the REMOVAL AND REPLACEMENT OF EXISTING ELECTRICAL FLUORESCENT BALLASTS AND LIGHTING FIXTURES AT CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA FACILITIES. Carmel-by-the-Sea, California. Sealed bids will be received at Carmel-by-the-Sea City Hall, East Side of Monte Verde Street, between Ocean & 7th Avenues, Carmel-by-the-Sea, California, on 2, March 1987, at 3:00 p.m., and then at said location opened and publicly read aloud.

Each bid document shall be in accordance with the specifications and other contract documents prepared by Frank Lee, Consulting Engineer, P.O. Box 1581, Monterey, California 93942. Bids shall be submitted on the form to be obtained from the office of the Engineer.

The information for Bidders, Bid Form, Agreement, and Specifications may be examined and/or obtained at the office of Frank Lee, Consulting Engineer, 7 Tweed Place, Del Rey Oaks, California93940.

Copies of the Contract Documents are obtainable by General Contractors at the office of the Engineer. Reference copies are available for the use of subcontractors and material suppliers at bona-fide Builders Exchanges.

Contract Documents are to be returned to the Engineer's office in good condition within seven (7) days after the bid opening date.

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea reserves the right to waive any informalities and/or to reject any or all bids.

Each bid must be accompainied by cash, certified check of the bidder, or a bid bond duly executed by the bidder as principal, from a surety company approved by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the base bid, made payable to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. This check or bid bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract and furnish bonds as specified with then (10) days after notice of award of the contract to the bidder, and will be retained as liquidated damages by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea if the successful bidder fails to execute the agreement as herein stated.

The successful bidder shall be required to furnish a Payment Bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, and a separate faithful Performance Bond in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100%) of the contract price, said bonds shall be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the City Of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Prior to commencement of work, the successful bidder must obtain a city business license. Proof of valid workmans' compensation insurance and general liability insurance in the amount of $1,000,000.00 (one-million dollars) shall be submitted to the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. The certificate of insurance shall guarantee that the issuing company shall provide to the named certificate holder, 10 days written notice of cancellation of the public liability and property damage policy. Proof of all applicable insurance coverages as required by the State of California or by the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea shall be on file with the City Clerk before work shall commence.

Attention of bidders is particularly called to the requirements of Labor Code 1773.2 and 1775 as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wages rates to paid under this contract.

Contractors shall not pay less than the prevailing rate of wages for each craft as determined by the local wage agreements between employers and unions. Deductions from wages are allowed for (1) federal old age retirement benefits, (2) State of California unemployment compensation, (3) federal withholding tax, and/or as otherwise stipulated by public law.

No bids shall be withdrawn for a perod of thirty (30) days subsequent to the opening of bids without the consent of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Gardens of China

Judy Donaghey, a member of one of the first delegations of landscape horticulturists to visit the People's Republic of China, will give a slide and lecture presentation on the country's parks and gardens 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 22, at the Performing Arts Center, Santa Catalina School, Mark Thomas Drive, Monterey.

Donaghey's slides will depict major parks, gardens, estates and research laboratories in Beijing, Chengdu, Kunning, Guilin, Guangzhou and Hong Kong. Her presentation will describe Chinese horticultural practices and techniques both modern and ancient.

Donaghey is on the staff of Oakland's Merritt College. Her trip to China was sponsored by the Citizen Ambassador Program of People to People International and the Botanical Society of China.

The lecture is part of the ongoing Gardeners' World spring lecture series sponsored by Peninsula Beautiful. Individual lectures are $5. Tickets may be obtained in advance at Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado St., Monterey. For more information, call Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

How to stop aging

"Reversing the Aging Process" is the subject of Dr. Reginald Walker's free lecture from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 21, in the Sunset Center Babcock Room, San Carlos at Ninth Street, Carmel.

Walker, who has a Ph.D. in nutrition, has a broad background of education and experience. In addition to nine years of clinical nutrition counseling, he is also a certified technician in shiatsu, orthobionomy, reflexology and deep muscle work.

"Through proper nutrition, exercise and skin care it is possible to reverse the skin's aging process and maintain a youthful, vibrant appearance," Walker says. He will talk about what foods to eat and avoid and will discuss specific techniques for optimum skin care.

For more information, call Sylvia Barbara Waldrup at 394-4445 or Cassandra Cobb at 659-2086.

Hadassah spring fashion show

The Monterey Peninsula Chapter of Hadassah will present a fashion show and luncheon at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club at noon Saturday, Feb. 21. Chapter members modeling will be Ruth Lapidus, Joyce Schnal, Barbara Taylor and Bobbi Yateman. Spring and summer fashions, along with her own popular models, music and door prizes, will be provided by Gerry's Designer Fashions of the Barnyard.

Hadassah chapters all over the United States and other countries help support two research and teaching hospitals in Israel, whose doors are open to all religions, races and creeds. The organization also promotes child welfare and education programs in Israel and the United States.

Cost for the luncheon and fashion show is $20. Reservations can be made by sending a check to Adeline Kohn, P.O. Box 435, Pebble Beach. For more information, call 624-1043.

OUTSTANDING SOLAR HOME FEATURED IN ARCHITECTURAL MAGAZINES

PARTINGTON RIGE, BIG SUR, CALIFORNIA

From the circular drive, paved with redwood slabs, can be glimpsed, through trees, this unusual and exciting architect designed solar retreat, with many flexible use areas.

Down redwood steps, through a garden and over a plank bridge crossing a small pool, one enters through a carved door indicative of the fine craftsmanship throughout.

The curved seating area surrounds a firepit which raises and lowers automatically. Facing is a broad window seat which can be used for sleeping. Two more similar seats front on the brick paved dining area. All indoor plants and trees are on automatic watering system. In the background is a sculptured storage cabinet concealing the kitchen.

The house is built around this water tank which is warmed by solar heat and topped by a loft for study or sleeping. Other areas include the master suite one-half flight above the main living area; another room and bath with stonelined tub one-half flight below, and a hobby room/office one flight down, with storage, darkroom and control center off the lower stairway. Ocean views add to enjoyment of this exceptional residence. $450,000. Contact our Coast Properties Division.

Day of remembrance

All area 10th Mountain Division Chapter Members are invited to share their memories and remember those who died in this noon luncheon Thursday, Feb. 19, at the Rancho Canada Golf Club on Carmel Valley Road.

On Feb. 19, 1945, General George P. Hays ordered the division "to seize, occupy, organize and defend Mt. Belvedere, and prepare for action to the northeast...." The division faced 50-mm mortars, German howitzer artillery, machine and submachine guns, and mines in the five miles of ascent but emerged victorious.

How to find places in Carmel

It's not easy, but it's not as hard as you think. If you will learn 4 key streets, you can find almost anything.

Ocean Avenue is the spine of Carmel, and Carmel divides at that point. It extends westward from Highway 1 straight downhill for 19 blocks to the Beach. For 5 blocks, Junipero to Monte Verde, it is the business section. Ocean Avenue is an extra street, lying between and parallel to 6th and 7th Avenues. Just why this bonus was allowed by Messrs. Duckworth and Devendorf (the original mapmakers of Carmel), who could have done something about it, has never been explained. It has puzzled everyone for 85 years.

The north-south artery is San Carlos Street, the only street that crosses Ocean Avenue without a stop. It begins rather apologetically at Santa Lucia on the south, takes on character at 13th, then drives straight north to 3rd Avenue where it becomes confused again and turns into Camino del Monte. Don't be dismayed by this apparent indecision; you are entering Carmel Woods where nothing runs straight. In fact, if you stick with it to the statue of Father Serra, then swing right on Serra Avenue, you will shortly blend into Carpenter which almost at once delivers you to Highway 1.

Another north-south arterial is San Antonio. It roughly parallels the beach one block inland and extends from Inspiration on the south to the Carmel Gate on the north, all under the same name. Hardly anyone believes this, but it is true.

The southern boundary of Carmel Village is Santa Lucia Ave. Everything south of it is Carmel Point, everything north is Carmel. It runs from the beach for 10 blocks (if you count on the north side) or 6 (if you count on the south) to Rio Road. A right turn here will bring you to the Mission and soon after back to Highway 1.

All the numbered avenues run east and west, and so long as you are within their confines, streets and blocks are reasonably square. We'd like to tell you that all the named streets run north and south, but they don't. Nor do the roads, ways, lanes, drives and places. Carmel people are friendly, so ask somebody — anybody.

Many areas are called Carmel Something-or-Other, which can be and is confusing. Memorize this simple guide:

|---|---|
| Carmel Woods | At the north end of Carmel. |
| Carmel Point | At the south end. |
| Carmel Knolls | Left off Carmel Valley Road at the first turn east of Hwy. 1. |
| Carmel Views | Ditto at the second turn. |
| Carmel Meadows | Right off Highway 1 about 1 mile south of Rio Road. |

If all else fails, we have a dandy map. Just drop in and ask for it. Or write. Or call.

CARMEL LEGENDS

No. 4

When Robinson Jeffers and Una Call fell in love at U.S.C. in 1905, he was 18 and she was 17. Only trouble was she was already married to a wealthy young L.A. lawyer named Ted Kuster. But love triumphed, as it often does in fairy stories, and Robin and Una were married in 1913. Robin built them a stone house on Carmel Point and a monument called Hawk Tower. "Well," said Ted, "if she likes stone castles, I'll build a better one!" And he did, a towering structure with turrets, slate roof and walls of granite at what is now Ocean View and Bayview, one block from Tor House. It didn't work, Robin & Una's marriage endured, so Ted busied himself with other projects, founding the Forest Theater and the Golden Bough, and marrying 3 more brides, all about 17. In every such enterprise he insisted on his new wife meeting Una, and she became a close friend to each of them. One, indeed, wrote a book about their relationship. All four (the 4th rotating position) maintained a close friendship which continued even beyond the inevitable divorces. No one has ever written this story. Probably no one ever will.
